

RALPH
Mc GILLIn the U.N.
Prayer Room

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.—Late in the afternoon after the first week of the emergency session of the U.N. General Assembly had ended, I stopped by the small, beautiful meditation room on the first floor of the U.N. building.

It was almost empty. Two middle-aged women sat there in silence. I dropped into a seat behind them. It was a good place to think.

There are those who, out of lack of information, have tried to say the United Nations is Godless because it does not open its sessions with prayer. This would be, of course, an impossibility.

The Hindus, Buddhists and Moslems all engage in their own form of prayer, though we would not recognize it as such. The Russians recognize no god or prayer. The little room, tastefully decorated and productive of meditation, is largely used. Most of those who go to it are tourists and Christians.

"A lot of people who come," said an attendant, "are fathers and mothers who lost sons in the two great world wars. They come here and pray for them and that the world will be spared another."

Many of the U.N. staff who have contemplative religions, such as Buddhism, make use of the room. So far as is known, no Russians have ever been in it, even out of curiosity.

Tremendous Thing

I thought of Woodrow Wilson. And of what a tremendous thing the United Nations is, for all its weakness. After the first week there was a feeling of hope and optimism. It could not be said to be based on any concrete achievement. But, sitting there, the feeling persisted that the very fact of 81 nations coming together and talking represented a great advance by man. Had there been no such forum, there would long ago have been war.

There are many new, small nations. Their devotion to, and hopes for the U.N. are inspiring. What has happened is that the U.N. has become a very real moral force. It has not stopped war. It may not prevent the one now brewing in the Middle East. But it has made war more immoral than ever before in the long, bloody history of the world.

This week the session is almost sure to vote on some sort of resolution which will send Dag Hammarskjöld, its secretary general, to the Middle East. What can the U.N. do along the lines suggested by him and adopted by the United States as presented in the President's speech? It will be difficult. All he may be able to do is to bring back suggestions to the regular session of the Assembly in September.

Positive Aspects

It will be his job to try and focus attention on the positive aspects of the Middle East. In the meantime, there will be quarrels, old disputes, and something will happen to Jordan. The threat of war will not disappear. It will remain in all the weary months and years ahead.

Sitting there in the quiet room, one could understand that there now goes on a great shift in history. We can peer into the future and see all sorts of possibilities of regional associations for economic benefits.

Great Britain, with much of her empire trained and assisted to become sovereign nations, earns much of her national income from oil. In time, one can be sure, the Arab nations, or one Arab nation, will nationalize that oil. The West will be able to buy it, but there will not be the great profit which is now derived from it.

And what of the Arabs and their great dream of restoring their ancient glories and cultural standards? The oil will not last forever, and the world, with atomic energy uses developing, may need less and less of it for energy. What leaders do they have who will see beyond the emotions of today and plan for an economy to replace oil.

Meanwhile, the world has a forum here by the busy East River. It is not perfect, being manmade. It offers, in its little known agencies, assistance, with help in agriculture and technical developments. It is possible, if the world does work out some formula for peace in our time, these U.N. agencies will burgeon and take on more meaning in the lives of millions of heretofore submerged peoples.

Meditating in the room created for that purpose, one thanked God for the fact of the U.N. and morality it has created.

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio (AP)

A young man was drowned while being baptized in Beaver Creek near here Sunday afternoon, sheriff's deputies reported.

He was identified as Cline Cogar, 21, of Grantsville, W. Va., a nephew of the Rev. Gallard McCartney, who was conducting the baptismal service.

Deputy Robert Miller said the Rev. Mr. McCartney went into a state of shock and was unable to give a coherent story of what happened, but it was believed that Cogar slipped from his uncle's grasp as he was immersed and drowned before he could be rescued. The young man was pronounced dead at City Hospital here.

Theft, Vandals
Hit 3 Churches

While six members of the Calvary Methodist Church choir were singing, $28 and their billfolds were stolen from the choir room. The church is at 1471 Gordon St., S.W.

Two other churches were struck by burglars and vandals.

Someone broke a window of the Morningstar Presbyterian Church at 1411 N. Morningstar Dr., N.E., ripped open a record player and threw records against a wall. An undetermined sum was missing from the Peachtree Christian Church at 1580 Peachtree St., N.W.

Our Crisis in Morals

Viewing Some Shows, One Feels

PART 2

The sick joke—alleged "humor" about victims of physical affliction or disease—has succeeded in revolting just about every individual of sensitivity. Sick sex is running a close second.

When literature, the stage, or the camera seek out sex appeal they are well within the bounds of art. Nothing is more appealing. Great art from "Tristan and Isolde" to "Anna Karenina" draws heavily upon it. But sex appeal is one thing. Sex distortion is another.

New York film critic William K. Zisser comments, "Taste is a matter of emphasis, not of content. A film can tell a delicate story, even an immoral story, and still not offend. Adultery is a fact of life, and it falls within the proper realm of drama if it is treated honestly."

But—reviewing the film version of Ernest Hemingway's "A Farewell to Arms," Zisser baldly labeled it "an incredibly offensive film."

"Nobody thinks that Hemingway wrote a dirty book," said this critic. "True, it describes an illicit love affair, but the writing is spare and honest, never salacious. Hemingway has compassion for his characters

The fiery failure of the giant Air Force rocket—longest ever launched by the United States—meant that another lunar probe by the free world probably will not be attempted before Sept. 14, when the moon again approaches within 222,000 miles of the earth.

Reportedly, this was not man's first effort to hurl a satellite into orbit around the moon. Russia is believed to have failed recently in a similar try.

After a spectacular launching, the 88-foot-long rocket blew apart with a huge puff of white smoke and orange flame at 50,000 feet altitude. Hundreds of spectators watched from a beach outside the missile test center.

SHORT TRIP

Thus, the flight that was to have taken two and one-half days to the moon ended abruptly only a little more than a minute after the firing.

Air Force spokesmen had warned that the odds were at least 10-1 against success of this first attempt to put a camera-equipped satellite into a lunar orbit.

They were disappointed, however, by the quick failure of the 52-ton rocket.

While there had been little chance that the lunar orbit would be achieved, they had hoped the rocket's three stages would fire and drive the payload up to the 25,000-mile-an-hour speed necessary to shoot it beyond reach of the earth's gravity.

FIRST STAGE

Instead, trouble developed in the engine of the first stage—a modified Thor intermediate-range ballistic missile.

Debris rained over the ocean some 10 miles from the cape after the first stage exploded. But a part of the missile seemed to continue onward several seconds more before it, too, plunged toward the sea.

Roy W. Johnson, head of the Advanced Research Projects Agency, indicated later that despite the blowup, the Air Force probably will get the next chance. The Air Force has been authorized to try three lunar probes, the Army two.

Johnson said, however, that "scientific exploration in the vicinity of the moon may continue through 1959."

"Today's attempt will go down in history, even though it failed," said the nation's top space planner. "This was the Kittyhawk of the missile business."

Norway-India Accord Puts
Crisis Up to Hammarskjöld

By THOMAS J. HAMILTON

(Copyright 1958 by The New York Times Co.)

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.—Norway reached an agreement with India Sunday on a compromise resolution which would assign to Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld complete responsibility for working out stable conditions in Lebanon and Jordan.

The resolution may be introduced Monday, when the emergency special session of the General Assembly begins its second week of debate.

The new draft, as prepared Sunday by Hans Engen, deputy Norwegian foreign minister, would ask Hammarskjöld to make such arrangements, in consultation with the governments concerned, "as he deems adequate" to uphold the principles of the United Nations Charter.

Unlike an earlier version, the revised resolution does not specifically request the secretary general to take steps to assure the independence and territorial integrity of Lebanon. According to persons in close touch with the negotiations, this was not felt to WARSAW — The Soviet Union has decided to supply Communist China with atomic weapons and ballistic missiles and to cooperate with Peiping in launching an earth satellite, according to reports reaching Warsaw.

These reports, which come from sources that first reported important military and political agreement between Moscow and Peiping ten days ago, also say the Soviet Union will build four more nuclear reactors in China.

These decisions are said to be among the major results of last month's conference in Peiping between the Soviet and Chinese leaders.

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

Significance of the decisions, according to these sources, is not only military. They say the decisions involve an agreement that the Soviet Union will contribute much more heavily than before to Chinese economic development. And these sources in Warsaw say the meeting resulted in closer relationship between Premier Khrushchev of the Soviet Union and Mao Tse-tung of mainland China.

It seems likely that reports of the Russian-sponsored modernization of China's military potential and increased Soviet economic aid to China are being allowed to circulate with at least tacit approval of the Soviet Union.

AUG. DISPATCH

On Aug. 9, three days after the appearance of the first reports from Warsaw about the agreement at Peiping, a dispatch was permitted to pass Moscow censorship hinting the Soviet Union would help the Chinese in the military and atomic fields. It is not possible to determine on the basis of information now available in Warsaw the full military implications of these reports or to what extent they are designed to impress the West. There is no knowledge of how many nuclear weapons or missiles the Soviet Union is in a position to give China or would want to give her.

AID TO ASIA

The question of motivations behind the decisions—and reports of them—is also important. It is believed here that the agreements are intended at least in part to give a major psychological boost to Peiping's place in world affairs.

In this connection it is reported in Warsaw that the Chinese and Russians have reached an understanding to accept Peiping's place in the economic development of Asia. It is reported that plans are being worked out to channel a major part of the Soviet bloc's economic assistance to Asia through China.

Senate Holding Key

WASHINGTON—Congress starts a home-stretch drive for adjournment this week. Whether it will make it appears to rest largely with the Senate.

The House, in good shape on most legislation, expects to dispose of two more major roadblocks to adjournment Monday—The Kennedy-Ives labor reform bill already passed by the Senate, and a long-delayed housing measure. After that, no major legislation except conference reports on bills it has already passed will detain the House.

The Senate outlook is complicated by two topics, both of which could give rise to lengthy debate—the nomination of W. Wilson White to be head of the Justice Department's new civil rights di-

SHOTGUN-WAVING FATHER ARRESTED

Police at Forest Park

Constitution Staff Writer

FOREST PARK—A retired army sergeant, waving a shotgun, held more than 50 policemen at bay for four hours here Sunday afternoon before surrendering to a youthful police chief and a young justice of the peace.

Three of his children, including a 3-months-old baby, were in the house with him.

The barricaded man, Earnest Hay, 49, of 214 Park Dr., surrendered to Forest Park Police Chief Milton H. Hutchison and Justice of the Peace Charles Brooks.

Hay, whose wife had obtained a peace warrant against him, admitted the chief and Brooks to his barricaded house after Hutchison made contact with him by telephone.

Hay told the chief over the phone he could wear his side arms "but don't double-cross me." Hutchison replied, "This is Sunday and I'm out of uniform and I won't be wearing my weapon."

Brooks told newsmen later, "I have a wife and two girls at home; Chief Hutchison has a wife and two boys at home. It's not my character to be a hero, so we tried to talk him out of a shooting incident."

Hutchison and Brooks talked to Hay for more than 35 minutes before he decided to come out peacefully. Hay, whose wife said he reads the Bible for lengthy periods of time, quoted Scriptures to Hutchison and Brooks.

Sunday's ordeal began when Hay's wife, Ruth Hay, 34, called Forest Park police to have them serve a peace warrant on her husband for threatening her, officers said. Hay had beaten his wife with a hammer handle, she told

Saudi-Nasser Unity Claimed by Faisal

Clouds Cleared, He Says After Talks on 'All Aspects'

CAIRO (UPI)—Crown Prince Faisal of Saudi Arabia ended three days of talks with United Arab Republic President Gamal Abdel Nasser Sunday and declared that any "clouds between the two countries now have been cleared off."

Salam Asks U.S. Pullout In Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—The government announced Sunday night it is sealing off the heart of Beirut in an effort to end the bombings that still shake the uneasy truce in Lebanon's revolt.

The order closing the area will bar entry to all private automobiles and taxis. Only doctors and what the government terms essential personnel will be permitted to drive into the zone.

The order is effective at midnight Sunday and comes in addition to a nightly curfew.

BUSINESS PLACES

Bombings of business places in the center of the city have been occurring regularly since Lebanon's civil strife began last May. The blasts have been part of a drive to enforce a general strike called by the rebels.

The bombings have continued despite the truce that followed the July 31 cessation of Gen. Faud Shehab as president-elect.

The government decision to close the area to traffic was taken after police discovered 15 unexploded bombs Sunday in Beirut's business district. Security authorities frequently have found explosive devices camouflaged as parcels in baskets of fruit and other goods.

U.N. GROUP

Earlier, opposition leader Saeb Salam called for immediate withdrawal of the U. N. Observation Group in Lebanon. His request came after the U. N. group made its third report on its work.

"With each successive report, UNOGIL has found less and less justification for their presence," Salam said. "On the strength of their own evidence and conclusions it would seem, much as we appreciate their past efforts, that their continued presence in Lebanon could no longer serve any useful purpose. We, therefore, feel justified in requesting their immediate withdrawal."

Faisal, speaking to newsmen, indicated strongly that his oil-rich desert kingdom had returned to the good graces of Nasser.

Faisal said there would be no communique. But he added his talks with Nasser covered "all conceivable aspects" and were "aimed at safeguarding the interests of the Arab nations generally and the two countries particularly."

Relations between Nasser and Saudi Arabia were at the breaking point last March before King Saud relinquished control over the nation's foreign, domestic and economic policies.

CONTACTS WITH U.S.

Since then, Faisal has been ruler in all but name and his current visit to Cairo was expected to bring one of the richest Middle East countries closer to Nasser.

Faisal, whose country has close contacts with the United States, was asked what Saudi Arabia thought about the use of U. S. and British troops in Lebanon and Jordan. He replied:

"Our stand against foreign intervention is well known. We are opposed to aggression anywhere. These forces must withdraw from Lebanon and Jordan and they inevitably will be withdrawn."

Faisal's statement about the Anglo-American troops in Lebanon and Jordan was far milder than those which have been made by U. A. R. leaders.

EISENHOWER PLAN

In Beirut, informed sources reported that Lebanese President Camille Chamoun was ready to ditch his pro-Western premier, Sami es-Solh, to mollify the opposition. The sources said Chamoun was ready to let a caretaker government replace Solh until President-Elect Faud Chehab takes office late next month.

In Tehran, Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Asghar Hekmet announced Iran's support for President Eisenhower's six-point Middle East plan. He said Eisenhower's plan and bring stable peace to the area would "help safeguard peace in the area."

The Saudi crown prince expressed the hope that the crisis in the Middle East had been settled. He added that "such events should provide an object lesson so that one should correct any wrongs in his own country."

CAIRO—A 23-year-old Jordanian woman, Nadia El-Salty, who has been condemned to death in Amman as a terrorist, is being portrayed in the Cairo press as a martyr to Arab nationalism.

Al Akhbar and Al Shaab both gave their main news headlines to her Sunday morning. Petitions addressed to the U. N. are being circulated here.

A long article purportedly from its Amman correspondent was carried by Al Akhbar Sunday morning quoting her as having said the only things she needed in her cell were "the Cross and a picture of Gamal Abdel Nasser." Miss Salty was said to be a Christian.

Road Spending In '58 Seen at $6.2 Billion

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Bureau of Public Roads estimated Sunday that spending on highways will shoot up to $6,200,000,000 for 1958, an increase of nearly 10 per cent from 1957. The figure includes total outlays by federal, state and local governments. In the years 1959-62, the bureau said, highway spending will total $30,200,000,000. The figures cover construction of new roads, improvements of existing ones, cost of engineering studies and purchase of rights-of-way.

delegation to the talks—Premier Chou En-Lai, Vice Minister of Foreign Affairs Lo Kuei-Po, Vice Minister of Foreign Trade Lei Jen-Min, and Vice Chairman of State Planning Commission Hsueh Mu-Chiao—indicated that emphasis was being placed on increased trade ties between the two nations. China last year granted Cambodia $22,400,000 in aid over a two-year period and signed an agreement providing $14,000,000 trade volume each way.

Panel Raps Toothpaste Advertising

Group Says FTC Failing in Job

WASHINGTON (AP)—A House committee said Sunday the Federal Trade Commission has fallen down on the job of halting false advertising of toothpaste.

The committee said the federal policing agency also has completely ignored the serious problem of deceptive advertising of tranquilizer drugs.

The Government Operations Committee gave its views in twin reports based on hearings by a subcommittee headed by Rep. John A. Blatnik (D-Minn.).

SCIENTIFIC PROOF

The congressmen said the FTC should ask toothpaste makers to submit scientific proof of their advertised claims, as the agency is now requiring of cigarette makers. They called on the FTC to initiate promptly conferences with industry aimed at drawing up fair advertising codes for toothpastes and tranquilizers.

The committee said 25 million dollars was spent in 1957 to advertise the 12 biggest toothpaste brands. But the American Dental Assn., it said, finds much of the advertising actually discourages proper tooth care.

It quoted testimony that three main advertising themes—that such-and-such a toothpaste stops tooth decay, wipes out bad breath or needs to be used only once a day—are untrue and lull people into a false sense of security.

NO MERITS

Dr. Harry Lyons, dean of the dentistry school at the Medical College of Virginia, said no merits for toothpaste have been scientifically established except as an aid to the toothbrush in cleaning teeth.

Dentists generally regard the toothbrush—not the toothpaste—as the more important tool for mouth cleanliness, he said.

Tranquilizers, sometimes nicknamed happiness pills, are a wonder drug whose use has soared in recent years. They can be sold only by a doctor's prescription. Therefore the advertising is directed to doctors.

The congressmen said doctors, though well trained, may be too busy and unsophisticated to resist alluring claims of misleading tranquilizer ads.

U.S. Study To Aid India 5-Year Plans

(Copyright 1958, The New York Times Co.)

NEW DELHI—The Ford Foundation has launched an economic research program to help the Indian government to formulate and execute future five-year plans on a more realistic basis.

The project envisages comprehensive study of the important aspects of economic growth in the country. The survey will be made by experts of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in cooperation with independent economic research institutions in India.

This is a four-year project which will get started next month with a grant of $750,000 from the Ford Foundation. The program has received enthusiastic support from the Indian government, the planning commission and leading economists of the country.

Bill Seeks FBI Powers In Dixie Bomb Probes

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Reps. Emanuel Celler (D-N.Y.) and Kenneth B. Keating (R-N.Y.) opened a bipartisan campaign Sunday to give the FBI authority to intervene in such cases as the bombings of churches, schools and synagogues in the South.

Celler, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, and Keating, its top Republican member, said they would introduce a bill Monday which would give the FBI the same kind of "coordinate responsibility" it holds in some other types of criminal cases.

The congressmen said in a joint statement that there have been 47 bombings or attempted bombings of homes, churches, synagogues, schools and community centers since 1947. In only one case, they said, were local police able to arrest those responsible.

FEDERAL CRIME

They added that a similarity in the bombings indicated that they were part of an inter-state conspiracy and that local police thus were hampered in efforts to catch the perpetrators. It said this made it necessary for the federal government to step in.

The Celler-Keating bill would make it a federal crime to transport or possess dynamite used to damage or destroy any religious, educational, charitable or civic building.

It would provide a maximum penalty of one year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

Celler and Keating said the bill was aimed at permitting the FBI "to intervene promptly in the event of future dynamiteings."

INTERSTATE COMMERCE

"This is done by creating a rebuttable presumption that dynamite used to bomb schools,

U.S. Marines Join British In Singapore

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy Sunday revealed stepped up preparations to help any friendly nation in the Indian Ocean area that might be shaken by a backlash from the Middle East crisis.

U. S. ships and Marines have put into Singapore, the big British naval base at the eastern approaches to the Indian Ocean, and Navy officials said they will remain in that area for the time being.

The officials said also that the Navy is spurring efforts started months ago to arrange for storage depots at strategically located ports on the Indian Ocean.

They hope to build up fuel and other supplies in the South Asia-Near East area for the use of any U. S. naval forces that might be operating there.

The officials said this search for conveniently located supply points had led to rumors that the Navy planned to establish full-fledged fleet in the Indian Ocean. One high official told a reporter "There is no Navy plan to create an Indian Ocean fleet."

The force that has reached Singapore is an amphibious squadron of four ships with Marines embarked.

Chou En-lai Raps U.S., Britain As He Woos Indonesia, Cambodia

(Copyright 1958, The New York Times Co.)

HONG KONG — Premier Chou En-Lai spent a busy day Sunday making friends and influencing southeast Asian people.

In the evening he pledged Communist China's "unswerving support" to Indonesia, accused the United States of engineering Indonesian rebellion and denounced U. S. action in the U. N. General Assembly as disguised aggression. Earlier in the day he began concerted government talks with the official delegation of the recently recognized government of Cambodia.

Speaking Sunday night at a Peiping independence day reception given by Indonesian ambassador Sukardjo Wirjopranoto, Chou accused the U. S. "aggressive bloc" of intervention in Indonesia "ranging from engineering and supporting armed rebellion to posing military threats and laying various underhand political plots."

He praised Indonesia for her "timely recognition" of Iraq, her demand for Anglo-American troop withdrawals from the Mideast and her demand for the U. N. General Assembly session to check aggression in the Near and Mideast.

Chou said "The Chinese government and people will exert their utmost to give unswerving support to the Indonesian government and people in their struggle to safeguard national independence and oppose imperialist aggression and interference."

Earlier Sunday the Communist Chinese Premier sat down for the first official talks with Prince Norodom Sihanouk of Cambodia. The composition of the Chinese

A Victory Is Won In Battle for Ballot

Urban areas fighting for fairer representation in the Minnesota State Legislature have scored an impressive triumph in a ruling handed down by a triumvirate of federal judges. The verdict amounts to an ultimatum to the State Legislature to reapportion Minnesota's voting districts to bring them more in line with population changes within the state.

This problem of reapportionment is something Minnesota and Georgia have in common with other states where legislators refuse to recognize the voting rights of citizens in heavily populated counties who pay the lion's share of state taxes. The Minnesota decision came after a group of taxpayers filed suit in U.S. District Court in Saint Paul some 18 months ago. They charged that they, as voters in under-represented voting districts, were denied their rights under the equal protection clause of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution.

District Judge Edward J. Devitt cited an earlier opinion of a three-judge court in Hawaii which said in 1956:

"The time has come and the Supreme Court has marked the way when serious consideration should be given to a reversal of the traditional reluctance of judicial intervention in legislative reapportionment."

"The whole thrust of today's legal climate is to end unconstitutional discrimination. It is ludicrous to preclude judicial relief when a mainspring of representative government is impaired."

Let the rabid opponents to modification of the unit system here in Georgia mark these words well.

That the county unit system is unfair and grossly discriminatory cannot be disputed. With the passage of time and the shifts of population from rural to urban centers, it has grown into an intolerable superstructure of inequities that must either topple of its own rotten weight or else be given a shove by the government.

The politicians who mouth pious phrases about states' rights are the very ones who force taxpayers in under-represented areas of Georgia to turn to Washington for relief from the injustices of this oppressive system.

Taxation without representation and a constant dilution of the value of a citizen's vote are two things that will not be stomached forever in a democracy such as ours.

Needed Action Planned By State Sheriffs Assn.

Members of the Georgia Sheriffs Assn., convening in Albany, set their sights on working out ways to alleviate two pressing problems confronting them and in which all citizens of this state have a stake.

One is juvenile delinquency, a subject to which the law enforcement officers devoted considerable time and thought. Conceivably a program will be worked out, possibly patterned along the lines of the Chatham County junior deputy movement, to promote respect for law and order among youngsters.

The other has to do with treatment of the mentally ill. "We sheriffs have neither the facilities nor the personnel to care for mentally deranged people and it makes us heartsick to have to hold these people in jail when they have committed no crime," explained association president Jewell L. Futch of Lowndes County. Legislation will be sought to correct the situation.

It is encouraging to see the sheriffs of Georgia planning courses of action on both problems. Such endeavors are needed and are worthy of support.

Truck Safety Patrol Is Commendable Step

Organization of a statewide safety patrol through efforts of the Georgia Motor Trucking Association is an experiment well worth watching. A minimum of 100 cars are conducting surprise road patrols at least one night each week out of 11 key cities on major truck routes in the state.

The cars are being manned by executives and employees of Georgia truck operators and suppliers, who will write observation reports on all trucks spotted. Copies of the reports will go to the home office of the company operating the truck.

Reports will cover violations of safe-driving practices such as unsafe speed, following too close, unsafe passing, obstructing traffic, failing to keep right, improper turns, improper parking, riders, inadequate lights and reflectors, dangerous wheels and tires, etc.

This effort on the part of the trucking industry to police itself deserves commendation. The motoring public lately has been complaining vociferously about disregard of safety rules—especially speeding—by heavy trucks. Anything the industry can do to promote safety is good public relations.

And while it is at it, the association very well might look into the matter of load tonnage. This, too, is a matter for regular complaint. The state's system of checking trucks for weight leaves much to be desired.

At any rate, these efforts by the trucking industry are in its own as well as in the public's good.

Congress Fails To Do Duty on Labor Laws

Legislation designed to protect the rank-and-file membership of labor unions from corrupt leadership is bogged down in a House committee as Congress enters the homestretch toward adjournment.

Chances of its passage are indeed slim although a last-ditch effort is shaping up to force a roll-call vote on the House floor.

Evidence brought out at Senate rack-ets committee hearings clearly pointed to the dire need of laws to safeguard union pension and welfare funds and to break the iron grip, once and for all, held by the hoodlum element over some major unions such as the Teamsters.

The AFL-CIO has tried to clean house but its efforts have fallen considerably short of the mark. Its ultimate weapon, suspension of a member union, is not powerful enough medicine.

James Hoffa will continue to reign as head of the Teamsters. As expected, he has failed to rid his empire of the unsavory characters whose contemptible acts have brought and are bringing disrepute to unionism on all fronts.

Congress' prolonged fiddling and failure to do something to curb abuses mirrored before their eyes is indefensible.

Theater-Under-Stars Deserves Helping Hand

The weather and the outdoor musicals at Chastain Park can be discussed jointly, and are.

Not much can be done about the weather. But something can be said—and done—about saving the Theater-Under-Stars at Chastain Park.

The need is obvious—enough financial support to sustain a rainy season like the one the outdoor theater has just soaked through.

Something is being done. Theater sponsors, interested businessmen are attempting to raise $50,000 to pay the estimated deficit on the 1958 series and to guarantee next year's card.

Atlantans who wish to support the Chastain Park phase of the community's cultural program can put their treasure where their heart is through substantial gifts.

Outdoor musical devotees of lesser means can accord support by buying 1959 tickets in advance.

That's the best way we know to keep the Theater-Under-the-Stars alive.

Soviet Education Is 'Deadly Serious' Matter

Further proof of the progress of education in the Soviet Union is contained in the report by eight leading American educators who recently completed a two-week study of higher learning within Russia. It is eye-opening and shows a pattern of dedication to study which this country cannot afford to ignore.

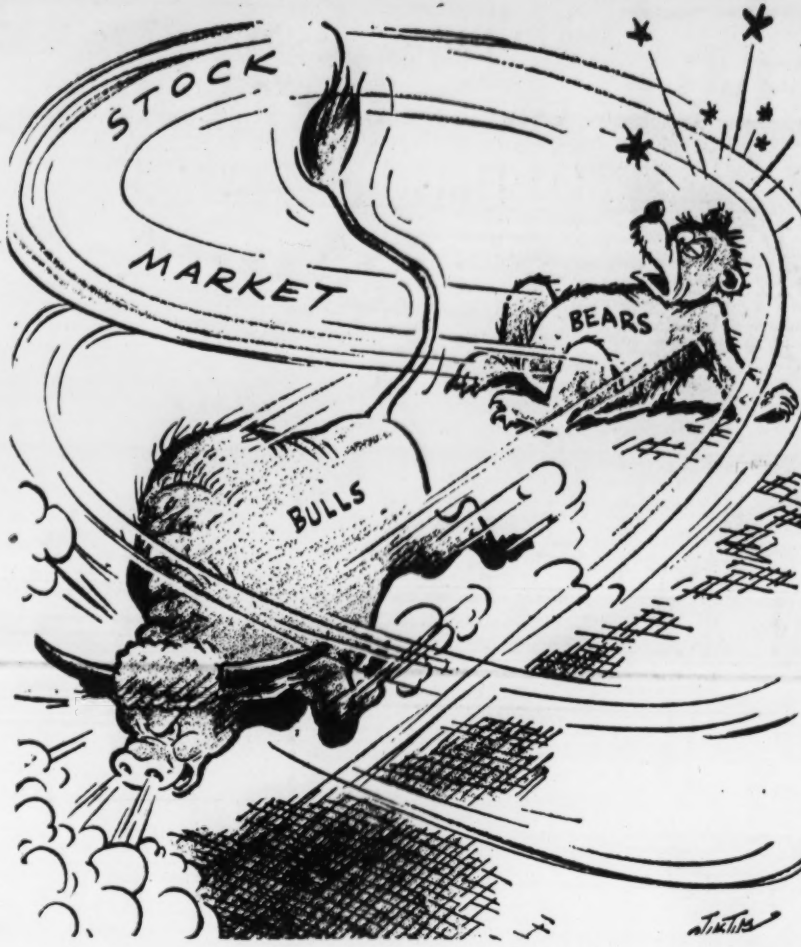

Dr. Edward H. Litchfield, chancellor of the University of Pittsburgh and chairman of the group, said they found a universal belief in the value of higher education. In addition, the Soviets are willing to pay the very high costs that are involved in money, in plant and in effort.

Of even more significance, however, is the evaluation of this effort. Education in Russia is considered a means of serving the state with relatively little importance attached to individual growth. Liberal education as such apparently does not exist.

But even so, the Soviet Union offers many inducements to higher education. It offers many scholarships and teaching and research personnel are highly paid and greatly respected. It has enabled the country to make tremendous strides in technology and industry.

Russian emphasis on education, even though designed to serve the interests of the state, has transformed a nation which was about 90 per cent illiterate into one of almost universal literacy.

It needs to be pointed out over and over in this country that the cost of education has become part of the over-all cost of survival. While no one would advocate the type of educational philosophy of the Russians, certainly this country can and must provide the type of school program the times demand.

Atlantan Urges Motorists To Gear Speed According to Density of Traffic on Road

Atlanta—Something can be done about highway tragedy. More emphasis can be placed upon "Speed Geared to Traffic," on maintaining a speed and a distance which would enable a car to come to a complete stop without swerving or crashing into the car ahead—regardless of the authorized speed limit.

Potential drivers drilled in gauging distance or fined for failure to observe same?

Many accidents can be attributed to the erratic speed of heavy trucks. They crawl uphill, then race downhill, speeding past the cars which switch them on the upgrade. They switch from right to left lane and force others to do likewise. They block vision. Where traffic is heavy and grades are steep, they should stay in the right-hand lane.

Too little consideration is given to the rights or lives of others and in many instances to self-preservation.

Traffic lights and flashing neon lights are often confusing and should be better controlled.

A roadside advertisement attracts the eye and distracts the attention of the passing, speeding motorist. To one advertisement strategically placed or to numerous advertisements many an accident might well be attributed. They should be removed or drastically restricted. It has been stated that only three words can be read in safety by a driver from a car in motion.

Crossing the center island should be classed with drunken driving.

Will Americans Listen To Adlai Stevenson Now?

There is strong possibility that Adlai Stevenson may have some answers of value when he returns home from his European tour. We must hope that party jealousy will not be strong enough to prevent his giving those ideas to the national administration and Congress.

Many Americans have spent time in Russia in the past few years. Some have said that they saw what the Russians wanted them to see and no more. Others have been able to talk freely at intervals with the Russian masses.

None who has been to Europe, and particularly to Moscow, has been in better position to observe and evaluate than Adlai Stevenson. The man has proved to be one of the better thinkers in the United States and his observations and information should be invaluable in the search for a common ground on which to meet the Russians and deal with their philosophy.

Stevenson talked face-to-face with Nikita Khrushchev and other top Russian leaders. He already has reached certain conclusions and apparently made some progress toward a better understanding of the American and Russian policies.

Stevenson has expressed considerable concern over the widespread misunderstanding and ignorance about the United States which he found in the Soviet Union. He suggests that freer exchange of ideas and information, as well as tourists, artists and athletes, should be inaugurated in an effort to dissipate this misunderstanding.

When he gets home, Stevenson will have a great store of information and observations which should not be lost in private talks. The Democratic title can be forgotten by both parties for the moment in the hope that Adlai has some concrete suggestions for turning the world back from the brink of global war. We have confidence that Stevenson possesses the capacity for accurately evaluating what he saw and heard in Russia.

Carroll Grows Farm Editors

There's something special about Carroll County, from Tyus to Temple. The west Georgia community has contributed its full share of citizens to the building of a better world.

It took a national convention of a group of agricultural journalists at Madison, Wis., to reveal the fact that the county of Carroll has produced four agricultural college editors. The four, assembled at Madison, were: J. Pledger Carmichael, born at Temple, Extension Service editor at Athens; Bill Mitchell, native of the Villa Rica vicinity, University of Florida; J. B. Copeland and Otis Copeland, brothers, who grew up near Carrollton, in editorial work at Clemson and North Carolina State respectively.

President at Last Seizes Initiative

WASHINGTON—President Eisenhower's United Nations plan for quieting the Middle East may mark a great divide in America's entire foreign policy. If he presses on for constructive and essentially economic solutions, in that area or elsewhere, he may well win a truly vital and creative Democratic backing in foreign affairs throughout the world.

This kind of backing he has not had for two years and more. His need for it has been very great all along. And it will be even a far greater need if, as is expected, the new Congress chosen in November is again in Democratic control.

Indeed, the President's newly proclaimed policy could turn out to be a most useful one even if it should fail in the Arab world itself. For the significance of his approach goes profoundly beyond this immediate area.

He has at last made a deep appeal to the leading Democrats. This time they are privately and genuinely enthusiastic, though the feeling is tempered with skepticism that says: "Now if he will only go through with it..."

The Eisenhower promise of American support to a regional Arab economic development scheme is good Democratic doctrine. It is wholly in line with what the senior Democratic member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Sen. J. William Fulbright of Arkansas, has been urging for at least four years.

It is good, strong medicine to the Democratic congressional leadership in general. The Democrats say, too, that it is little more than what Adlai E. Stevenson had urged on the Eisenhower administration long ago. Harry S.

Truman, too, is said to be pleased.

All these facts mean that if and when the President calls on Congress for any legislative action he might need in this field, he will get it, and quickly. In fact, the Democrats do not exclude action in a special session of Congress this fall in the unlikely event that the President should decide on such a course.

Too, the President's positive stand is widely seen among the controlling Democrats as a belated—but still welcome—break with the negative influence on foreign policy of the right-wing Republicans.

They see it—and so do some Western members of the foreign diplomatic community here—as opening the way to a fresh and hopeful start in the cold war. They believe, for example, it will do much good for us, as one puts it, "with all the Nehrus of this world."

He means Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India and the vast numbers everywhere who have persisted in suspecting us on the ground that we were "sterile" on the issues of pacifying the world.

They think, in short, that we are at last off dead-center, assuming that the President will strongly exploit the initiative he has gained.

This Psalm Has Special Promise

One morning I received a phone call from a lady who was almost hysterical. She was drinking and was afraid her parents would learn about it. Because of her condition she had to give up her job. With no income she could no longer pay her psychiatrist's fees. She would not say who she was, where she lived, who her doctor was or what was troubling her.

I asked, "If you do not tell me something about yourself, how can I help you?" She answered, "Please repeat for me now the 23rd Psalm."

After I said the Psalm slowly, she replied, "Thank you. I feel better." Then she hung up. To this day I do not know who called but I always shall remember how the 23rd Psalm helped one in distress.

The 23rd Psalm is a prescription for anxiety. It has that ability to quiet human fears and worries through the centuries. Perhaps that is why it is the world's most beloved Psalm. It is next to the Lord's Prayer in popularity. It is repeated by countless souls when faced with fear and worry.

What is there about the 23rd Psalm that would make it a favorite over the generations? It is due most probably to the fact that it tells us the kind of a God we have.

"The Lord is my shepherd." The root word for shepherd means friend. God is a good friend who proved it by dying on the cross to save the sheep.

He is a God who provides. "I shall not want." He makes us lie down in green pastures. He leads us beside still waters. He feeds the soul with the bread of life and gives serenity of spirit.

Dr. Allen is on vacation. His column is being written this week by Dr. John R. Brokhoff, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Charlotte, N.C.

The God of the 23rd Psalm desires naught but good for his people. "He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness..." Temptation, sorrow and suffering do not come from God. He wishes us to have all that is good and righteous.

He is a God who protects us from all danger, even death. "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil..." There is no reality to death because it is only a valley or a shadow.

God is one who honors his own. He prepares a table in the presence of our enemies. He anoints our heads with oil as though we were kings. He fills our cups to overflowing.

The 23rd Psalm gives us hope for a good life here and its continuation through eternity.

With this kind of a God as a personal possession we can say, one little girl's version: "The Lord is my shepherd. That's all I want."

The Signs Bewitch, Bother, Bewilder

If there's one thing modern man is preoccupied with, it is signs. They tell him when he shouldn't smoke, how to behave on the highways, to stay off the grass, how to operate machinery, to step to the rear and other information necessary for a successful life. And there is a great market for spoofing signs, most of them for automobiles, such as the one seen on a small foreign car: "Don't Squash Me—I Eat Bugs."

Countering this is the sticker designed for large automobiles: "Help Stamp Out Foreign Cars." Traffic signs can be confusing.

Many towns have a precautionary sign stating, "Speed Zone Ahead."

This sign precedes one designating regulated speeds and what it really means is "Slow Zone Ahead." There are numerous signs telling about soft shoulders, the penalty for throwing stuff on the highway and the approach of "dangerous" intersections, as though all of them weren't dangerous.

Most of the highway signs are needed and occasionally more would be appreciated. An example is Highway 78 from Birmingham to Atlanta. The Alabama portion has mileage markers ever so often giving the distance to Atlanta, but once one crosses into Georgia, Atlanta drops off the highway. There are no more mileage signs.

Finally, many miles later, the outline of a large city obscures the horizon. It is Atlanta.

I have a gasoline lawnmower which has emblazoned in its metal the following declaration: "Keep hands and feet from under mower." This is splendid advice and something one wouldn't think of himself.

Some people go about with a very important shield-shaped sign on their car which identifies the vehicle owner as an "Official U.S. Government Taxpayer."

Signs can be vexing and the population has been known to rise up against them.

I remember during the late war seeing a large color poster in a railway station in Cardiff, Wales. Depicted was a British Tommy in full battle dress, lugging a rifle, gas mask, entrenchment tools and all the other gear of the foot soldier. Somehow, despite all this mess, the Tommy had an arm raised and his index finger pointed accusingly at the traveler. Overlaying the poster was the question, in very large letters, "Is This Trip Really Necessary?" Beneath this patriotic summons to a quiet day at home, someone had scrawled in pencil, "Yes, I am going to the dog races." And that took care of that.

Towns and cities often erect large signs spelling out for the traveler the many virtues of the fair place near at hand. Glowing words are flung in all directions. Striving for honesty, a town over in Mississippi states on its sign it is the home of 700 and some-odd fine people and a few old sore-heads.

police, and she had fled to a home across the street.

Three children, Janet, 3 months old; Patricia Ann, 12, and Dwight, 14, were in the Hay home.

Sgt. Robert Norton and Patrolman Robert Wilkins were dispatched to the Hay home after Mrs. Hay called police. As officers mounted the front steps, the retired Army sergeant shoved a shotgun toward the officers and said:

"What are you trying to do here?"

Patrolman Wilkins replied, "We've come to serve a warrant on you."

Hay snapped back: "You're not going to serve any warrant on me."

Officers told him they would knock the door down to enter if he did not come peacefully, and

Hay snarled back: "My middle name is Ready, and you'd better be ready, too, because if you come in here you're dead."

The officers retreated to their patrol car and called for more help.

Police and volunteer firemen cleared residents out of the area

Chief Hutchison Charles Brooks and blocked traffic in a three-block radius. Crowds gathered in nearby yards as the police went into action.

Hay was taken to the Forest Park police station and later transferred to the Clayton County jail at Jonesboro. He is being held without bond.

As officers were taking Hay to Jonesboro, his wife called Forest Park police and asked when her husband would be allowed to come home, officers said.

Hay was discharged from the Army as a sergeant first class in January, 1957, after 22 years' service.

He faces a charge of molesting a 15-year-old girl.

Looking at the loaded shotgun that her husband had used to stand off the officers, Mrs. Hay smiled and said, "Lord, he's pointed that thing at me so many times it's pitiful."

Alabama Asks Trial Of Dockery

Alabama state investigator Bob Godwin said Sunday night he will meet with Fulton Sol. Gen. Paul Webb Monday morning to ask return of a 24-year-old confessed slayer to face trial in Alabama.

Godwin said he will ask Webb to drop charges of robbery and assault with intent to murder against Edwin Ray Dockery, 24, alias Ray Bouger, of Fayette, Ala.

Atlanta police booked the charges against Dockery after he was captured in a manhunt here, following the beating of a Columbia, S. C., soldier who had given him a ride to Atlanta from Birmingham.

Dockery has signed a statement admitting he attacked the soldier, Howard Morris, 26, and took his car.

Godwin said Alabama wants to extradite Dockery so he can stand trial for the murder he admitted. Dockery said he choked to death for $2 Willie Heatherly, 26, of Cullman, Ala., whose body was found last Tuesday.

Mississippi authorities also were expected to file a holder on Dockery, who has admitted during police interrogation of him that he has knowledge of the kidnap-slitting of wealthy New Orleans candy manufacturer Caswell P. Ellis, 41, between Waynesboro and Meridian, Miss., Aug. 5.

Explorer Scouts Fall Day Behind In Voyage Down Chattahoochee

Tenting on the old camp ground near Franklin Sunday were 14 Explorer Scouts who set out Friday to conquer the Chattahoochee in a 150-mile boat trip.

The group of 14- to 16-year-olds, led by Col. Keumel K. Blacker, Third Army aviation officer, were reported 24 hours behind their schedule Sunday by CWO Mike Krilla of the Third Army information section.

"Unexpected shoals and rocks have put the boys about a day behind," he said, "but they are determined to get to Ft. Benning if at all possible."

The unforeseen delays have put a crimp in the five days' rations carried by the group in their collapsible Army assault boats. The two to five m.p.h. average they have maintained is slower than anticipated.

A request to travel all night was overruled by Col. Blacker, who thought a good night's sleep for all would be more valuable.

And so, when the sun rises in the east Monday, 14 slightly wet but happy youthful voyagers will again face the perils of the Chattahoochee as they set out for their next objective, West Point.

On to Benning!

AF Rocket To Moon Blows Up

tic missiles division, said telemetry data must be analyzed before the exact cause of the blowup will be known.

"There could have been a leak or a ruptured fuel line in the Thor propulsion system," he said. "Everything functioned perfectly up to that point."

"We are disappointed, but not discouraged," he added. "This appears to be one random failure which should have no effect on our future plans."

BETTER CHANCE

Johnson and Schriever agreed that the chances of success will be much better as the moon probe program progresses.

"It was a major accomplishment just to get the missile off today in the specified time," Schriever said.

Split-second timing is required for a moon launching.

Because of the complex celestial mechanics involved—such as the moon's rotation around the earth—the launching team was restricted to only a 15-minute span within which to fire the rocket.

It blazed straight up just four minutes after the planned zero hour of 7:14 a.m. EST. A huge stream of yellow flame roared from the exhausts as it climbed steadily for about 40 seconds.

Then, just after it veered toward the northeast, a cloud of white smoke appeared. Most of the 150 newsmen observing the shoot from about a mile away believed it to be the first stage burnout and ignition of the second stage.

Even as it plummeted to earth, the missile continued to relay telemetry signals.

The satellite, which weighed 83.8 pounds, carried special equipment to radio back pictures of the moon—especially the unknown dark side which never faces the earth. It also would relay data on the impact of tiny meteorites and the magnetic fields of the earth and moon.

ONE MINUTE

The blowup occurred about a minute before the first stage would have completed its phase of the flight.

Schriever said the control system in the Thor section was changed radically for the moon probe but that the propulsion components were essentially the same as those of the standard Thor.

The Air Force has had great success lately with the Thor, a 1,500-mile-range missile powered by liquid oxygen and kerosene.

If the missile had behaved as planned, the Thor first stage—eight feet in diameter and weighing more than 100,000 pounds—would have exhausted its fuel and dropped away 2 minutes and 37 seconds after launching.

The slender Vanguard second stage, looking out of proportion atop the thick Thor stage, was to have been set spinning the instant the first stage had dropped away and the second stage main engine had ignited.

SPIN ROCKETS

The spinning was to have been accomplished by the firing of eight small spin rockets and was designed to give it the flight stability required for its planned journey through space.

Atop the 4,000-pound, fluid-propellant second stage was a solid fuel third stage which also was designed for but has not yet been used in the Navy Vanguard satellite-launching vehicle.

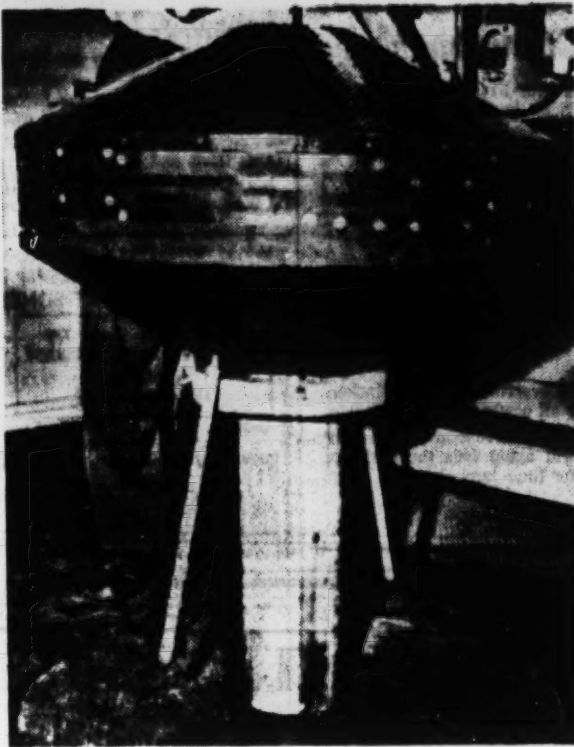

Although the third stage weighed only 400 pounds, its Allegany Ballistics Laboratory rocket engine had a thrust of 2,500 pounds—enough to accelerate it violently to the 25,000 miles an hour velocity needed to escape the earth's gravity.

The third stage and the probe or payload were covered by what the Air Force called an "aerodynamic nose fairing."

This gave the top of the rocket a slightly bulbous appearance just below the pointed tip.

After the third stage had been expended, the rocket was to have coasted moonward for some five minutes while electronic computers on the ground calculated any deviations from the desired course and speed. These deviations, if they developed, would have been corrected by the firing of small paired Vernier rockets.

The lunar probe's flight to the area of the moon was to have taken 2.6 days. As it came to within 50,000 or 60,000 miles of the moon, a 3,000-pound thrust terminal rocket in its forward end was

MOON ROCKET'S INSTRUMENT PAYLOAD
83.8 Pounds of Instruments on Aborted Flight to have been fired by radio signal from a station in Hilo, Hawaii. This rocket was geared to adjust the probe to the speed and course required for an orbit around the moon.

Given an elliptical orbit 50,000 miles from the moon, the probe would have taken five to seven days to complete a flight around that body. Its batteries were sufficient to keep its camera device and its radio operating for about two weeks.

Our Crisis in Morals

are quite certain to fall mad, if they do not die."

The controversial movie "Baby Doll" could have been a work of art if it had taken the measure of its characters' depravity instead of merely wallowing in it. There was no yardstick of truth. Thus the Saturday Review commented, "There is no concealing the fact that, though technically 'Baby Doll' is Elia Kazan's most skillful film to date, it is also one of the most unhealthy and amoral pictures ever made in this country."

What is "unhealthy and amoral" about it? Kazan, the director, and Tennessee Williams, the author, argued that they had shown a decadent segment of life in the South, "the personal story of four small and pitiable people," and tried to do so "with honesty and charity." Why should Time Magazine have called it "just possibly the dirtiest American-made motion picture that has ever been legally exhibited?"

"Baby Doll" is the story of a long, drawn-out seduction attempt upon a dim-witted young girl. Does the subject matter alone make it "dirty"? Not necessarily. It has been said, and rightly, that the artist may on occasion reach down into the gutter and come up with a pearl. But this does not mean that every time he reaches down he may proclaim, "See my pearls!" He may simply have come up with filth.

It is truth that makes the difference. The artist may deal with murder, and great art including the Bible and Shakespeare often does. But there is no doubt in such literature that murder is wrong. If an author writes about murder unsure whether it is right or wrong, he is less the artist and more the psychopath.

Sex, too, is legitimate grist for art. But when the artist treats sick sex — distortion of the human drive — as though it were normal, he has missed his reach for the pearl.

OFFERED AS ART

Sick sex, not diagnosed as such but somehow paraded as normal, is today a frequent offering under the guise of art or at least entertainment.

The Brigitte Bardot movie "And God Created Woman" is in reality the story of a highly neurotic young girl, so enveloped in sex maladjustment that she should be under intense psychotherapy. But she is palmed off as a heroine.

Recently Mickey Spillane was introduced on television, via a series on his hero, Mike Hammer. Here sex and sadism are entwined in a skein suitable for the pages of "Psychopathia Sexualis." A skilled psychiatrist might be interested in unraveling it — but in the course of medical treatment, not on the family's 21-inch screen.

Sick sex may have reached its nadir in Los Angeles in November, 1957, when Elvis Presley performed for two nights at the Pan-Pacific Auditorium. One Los Angeles paper described the offering as a "Frantic Sex Show."

CRITIC OF PRESLEY

A New York critic said Presley's "performance was absolutely frightful in its cynical pandering to the most violent sexuality, not too far short of Sodom and Gomorrah."

A newspaperman, not easily shocked, was moved to report, "This is corruption of the innocent on a scale such as I have never witnessed before. For these are children to whom Elvis appeals, curious adolescents, who are artificially and unhealthfully stimulated. They are not adults who can take his crudities and laugh or shrug them off."

The danger is not so much that we are overplaying sex as that we are underplaying it, in the true sense. Sex is not gyrations on a stage nor lewd remarks nor suggestive situations on TV. It is, of course, a deep and intimate relationship that is the essence of marriage, the well-spring of family life, potentially a quintessential expression of love.

But today you never know it. Richard Stock, executive secretary of the Family Service of Los Angeles Area, ruefully comments, "Today there is so much more education against marriage and family life than for it."

Even motherhood shares in the distortion. Dr. Mary J. Sherkey of the Payne Whitney Clinic in New York, comments: "The fannies, the sweaters, the all symptoms of modern woman's shift away from motherhood."

Battles have raged for years over sex education. But there is an issue often overlooked. We are providing sex education—gobs of it. But is it "sick-sex education?" Are we presenting sex in God's setting or distortion and neurosis masked as entertainment?

Says sociologist Pitirim Sorokin of Harvard, "Our mores have changed so notably that continence, chastity, and faithfulness are increasingly viewed as oddities of a pre-historical age."

trouble with our best and most thoroughly tested rockets."

"This is a grim warning to America," he said. "Our best is second best and unless we step up the pace we won't be in the race at all." Johnson, of Texas, is chairman of the Senate Space Committee.

The Thor intermediate range ballistic missile, which formed the first stage of Sunday's moon-probe vehicle, was the component that failed. It has been regarded as one of the most reliable units in the U.S. missile arsenal and is being delivered to members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Gen. Wilson maintained that the Thor is "a very good missile." It has "bugs," he conceded. "There are still 'bugs' in the automobile you drive," he said.

He appeared on "College News Conference," a radio and television program of the American Broadcasting Co. Asked if he thought the failure of Sunday's moon probe was a propaganda blow, he said the Department of Defense had tried in advance to "play down" the firing.

If the scene at the Pentagon early Sunday was any indication, the attempt to restrain public excitement and anticipation was at least partly successful. During the count-down the number of newsmen in attendance was small compared to some of the Vanguard satellite-launching attempts. Sunday's firing was man's first announced shoot for the moon and excitement was inevitable. Nevertheless the emphasis on a mere one-in-10 chance of success had seemingly done its work. Both the public and Pentagon seemed acutely mindful of the fiasco at the first attempt to fire the Vanguard satellite-launcher.

At that time Dr. John P. Hagen, director of Vanguard, had warned of almost overwhelming odds against success. His voice was drowned out by a publicity build-up abetted by the government. The program had been freshly goaded by the launching of two Soviet sputniks.

Sunday the launchers could reasonably suppose that, to date, no one was ahead of them in the race to the moon.

Officially, of course, it is not a race. Gen. Wilson underlined this when he said that beating the Russians "was not the governing factor." He admitted, however, that the question of national prestige "has crept into scientific efforts of all sorts."

The Air Force has been allocated two more attempts in the current moon-probe program. The Army is also to get two tries. Gen. Wilson said he thought the next shot would be fired by whoever was ready.

The probable nature of a Soviet moon probe program was indicated in the June issue of Vestnik (Messenger), issued by the Soviet Academy of Sciences. Prof. G. V. Petrovich listed as projected studies for a moon probe the observation of cosmic rays beyond the earth's magnetic field, the extent of meteoric impacts, the transmission of an image of the hidden side of the moon, "and a number of other properties of outer space at various distances" from the earth.

Adjourning Seems Up To Senate

justification for sending federal troops to enforce integration at Little Rock's Central High School. They have expressed their annoyance by delaying since January the Senate Judiciary Committee approval of White's nomination to his new post.

Now that the nomination has been approved by the committee, they are reportedly ready to express their annoyance further by lengthy and embittered speeches when the Senate takes up the matter. Their opposition is not expected to defeat White, but it is expected to add a day or more to the work of the Senate.

In similar fashion, Southern senators, this time in coalition with conservative republicans, are expected to consume at least two days, possibly more, in debate on a series of bills to nullify Supreme Court decisions in several areas, including state-versus-federal control of subversive activities, the issue of prompt arraignment of criminal suspects and conflicting state and federal jurisdiction over a broad area of legislation.

In addition to these measures, the Senate still must pass a bill raising the debt limit to $288,000,000,000, and the $3,818,000,000 foreign aid appropriation.

Reds Base More Jets Off Taiwan

Occupy Airfield
110 Miles Away

By TILLMAN DURKIN
(Copyright 1958, The New York Times Co.)
TAIPEI — A military spokesman announced Sunday the Chinese Communist occupation of still another airfield along the Fukien coast. He said the Reds have now based aircraft on Lungtien Field, directly across the straits from the northern end of Taiwan (Formosa) and only 110 miles away. Lungtien is about 40 miles south of Foochow and is the nearest field to Taiwan in use by the Communists.

The spokesman did not say what kind of aircraft the Communists have based on Lungtien but is likely the planes are jet MIG-17 fighters of the kind the Communists have put on other fields along the southeast China coast.

The Chinese Reds have now brought into operation four airfields on or near the Fukien coast, Lungchi, Liencheng, Foochow and Lungtien. Still another, Spati, just north of Amoy, is believed in occasional use.

The Fukien coastal front was quiet Sunday. On six occasions Communist jets along the coast flew close enough to the nationalist-occupied Matsu islands to cause air raid alarms but no threatening gestures toward the islands.

Adm. Liang Shu-Chao, commander of the Nationalist navy, and Gen. Peng Meng-Chi, commander of the army, expressed satisfaction with the Matsu defenses after their return from a trip to the islands.

Adm. Liang said there has been no marked change in Communist naval strength along the Fukien coast. He said the Nationalists still exercise air and naval supremacy in the coastal area despite the recent Communist build-up of air power.

Hall Is Out Of N.Y. Race For Governor

NEW YORK (AP)—Leonard W. Hall withdrew Sunday as a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor of New York.

The former GOP national chairman said in a statement: "I have always been a realist in politics. I am therefore withdrawing my name as a candidate for governor."

The statement gave no indication of what Hall planned to do with the delegates pledged to him. Only Saturday night he claimed he could count on about 300 delegate votes at the GOP state convention in Rochester, N.Y., Aug. 25-26. He had 163 votes publicly pledged.

Hall's withdrawal left three candidates in the race for the GOP gubernatorial nomination. They are Nelson A. Rockefeller, the acknowledged favorite with 365 pledged delegates; State Senate Majority Leader Walter J. Mahoney, who has 255 pledges, and former U. S. Atty. Paul W. Williams, who has no delegate pledges.

Soviet Union Will Supply Red Chinese With Atomic Weapons, Warsaw Is Told

talks remains largely conjecture. But it can be reported definitely that word of decisions has reached important circles in Warsaw and the decisions are considered of prime importance in relationship between China and the Soviet Union.

These decisions, sources here say, have a background of debate within Soviet circles. Warsaw believes that an important section of Soviet political leadership had been working for a long time to increase the role of China as an economic factor in the Communist world but that Khrushchev had been lukewarm at best.

But these sources do not believe that the fact that he has now accepted greater aid to China is a defeat for him. On the contrary they believe he emerged from the Peiping meeting with a more solid relationship with the Chinese leaders and consequently a relatively freer hand at home.

According to reports reaching this capital, the Chinese told the Russians they have need for ballistic missiles and anti-missile defenses because of the presence of United States and Chinese Nationalist troops on Taiwan. Reports say the Russians agreed to supply the Chinese with missiles but the type is not known.

Reports say the Chinese also want Russian agreement to their ambition to start on the road toward a nuclear power. The supply of nuclear weapons, possibly in the form of warheads for the missiles, is said to be part of this understanding.

Warsaw reports add that the Russians will do more than supply atomic weapons. Moscow is said to have agreed to build four more nuclear reactors, making a total of at least five, and to help China work on plans for electrifying an area of the northwestern part of the mainland through atomic energy.

Labor Plans New Cleanup; Teamster Ties To Be Cut

By STANLEY LEVEY

(Copyright 1958 by The New York Times Co.)

FOREST PARK, Pa. — The American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations is preparing a new internal cleanup.

This was confirmed here Sunday as members of the merged labor movement's powerful executive council gathered at Unity House, the vacation resort of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, for their regular quarterly meeting. Two major moves are expected:

1. The council is expected to order its affiliates that have working alliances with the expelled International Brotherhood of Teamsters of James R. Hoffa to end these arrangements.

2. Labor's top command will also turn its attention to the case of Maurice A. Hutcheson, president of the Carpenters Union. In defiance of the AFL-CIO Code of Ethical Practices, Hutcheson has refused to answer the questions of two Senate investigating committees.

Walter P. Reuther, president of the United Automobile Workers and an AFL-CIO vice president, expressed certainty that the council would insist that pacts with the Teamsters must be dropped. He indicated that the prohibition would apply to arrangements on the national level for organizing and collective bargaining and not to local relationships.

The Hoffa union has dealings with the following AFL-CIO affiliates: the machinists, meatcutters, upholsterers, flight engineers, carpenters, operating engineers, office employees and retail clerks. Recently it negotiated an agreement for a "continuous and permanent organization" in the transport field. The two other signatories were the expelled International Longshoremen's Assn. and the National Maritime Union, an AFL-CIO affiliate.

29 Bodies in Crash Unidentified

GALWAY, Ireland (AP)—Dutch airline officials said Sunday the bodies of 29 unidentified victims of Thursday's crash of a KLM Super Constellation probably will be buried at Galway after a formal inquest Monday morning. Ninety-nine persons perished in the disaster.

Airline authorities added that so far only five of 34 bodies recovered from the sea after the crash have been positively identified. The names were:

Mrs. Ann Finn, 48, the Bronx,

N. Y.; Eby C. Espenshade, 44, Elizabethtown, Pa.; Leendert Van Wyk, 66, Ripon, Calif.; Akile Delvina, 29, Greenwich Village, New York, and Raymondo Uranga, 43, an Argentine residing in Mexico. Their bodies will be flown to Amsterdam Monday night.

Evidence collected so far in the inquiry into the cause of the crash indicates strongly that a sudden explosion blasted the big airliner from the skies. Doctors said all bodies recovered showed evidence of injuries related to blast.

As I See It

A Few TV Shows Are Worth Repeats

By PAUL JONES

How many times in your life have you gone back to see the same movie again and again?

I can recall scores of instances when I have returned to see good pictures a second or even a third time. And, I believe, the motion picture business has facts to show that most of the outstanding films are viewed more than once by millions of fans.

Take, for instance, a show like "The Moon Is Blue" or "Going My Way," "Gone With the Wind" or "How Green Was My Valley," or any of hundreds of other memorable screen events, too numerous to mention. Many of these shows have been seen as many as a half-dozen times by millions.

Every day, thousands of viewers see movies for a second, third and fourth time as they are repeated on the TV screens throughout the nation.

Since this space is ordinarily devoted to a discussion of television, I suppose you are wondering how I got off on the topic of movies.

Well, it simply is this. I got to thinking about the number of old movies on television and how the time devoted to such entertainment is growing all the time. And I tried to make a list of great television shows I'd like to see repeated.

I must admit I didn't get very far.

I started off with "Requiem for a Heavyweight" and then I listed the fabulous Bing Crosby-Frank Sinatra show and a couple of the great Jackie Gleason programs and at least three of Milton Berle's best. The Mary Martin performance in "Peter Pan" is still one of the most memorable ever and I certainly would like to see it again and again and again.

THE I LOVE LUCY shows, the best of which now are being offered on CBS-TV (Channel 5 each Monday night) rate a return billing and I think one of Dave Garraway's Wide World shows would stand repeating.

Some folks like the My Little Margie shows and the I Married Joan comedies. Others like the Halls of Ivy, starring the late Ronald Colman and some viewers even like to watch the repeats of People Are Funny and You Bet Your Life.

But, to be perfectly honest, aren't the movies the best reruns you've seen on television all summer?

I'm inclined to think they are.

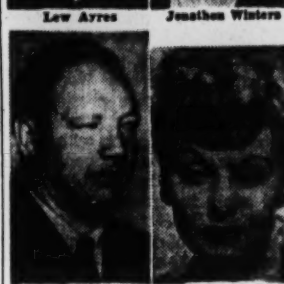

BITS OF THIS AND THAT—Tony Martin, the last of the original Arthur Godfrey troupe, has been signed to do his own program for a New York station.

Does this mean he will no longer be around to give Godfrey that terrific buildup at the opening of the show? Bob Crosby's show has fallen into a sort of rut. . . . It does not have the zip it had to start with.

Betsy Palmer starts her tour on today today. . . . Doesn't Wyatt Earp spend more time kissing the girls than he does tending to the law? . . . It seems to me that he does.

"MISS ANONYMOUS" of Atlanta, writes: "Your remarks about Helen O'Connell are not appreciated. We who have been around since her days with Tommy Dorsey have always enjoyed her personality. Maybe Betsy Palmer is good, but here's one of the listeners to the Today show who will miss Helen."

"I read your column quite often and most times do not agree with you or do not like the way you put things. You are much too frank and blunt." Yes, but I sign my name to what I write.

TV Plans 5 Films on Civil War

By OSCAR GODBOUT

(Copyright 1958, The New York Times Co.)

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — The National Broadcasting Co. and Dore Schary are in the process of concluding an agreement calling for the producer-writer to make five, 90-minute television films dealing with the War Between the States. The programs, according to Schary, will differ from each other in concept, execution and style.

The TV excursions into the War Between the States will be telecast during the 1961-62 season on the NBC network. The 100th anniversary of the war will begin on Jan. 9, 1961. Jan. 9 was the date of the Ft. Sumter bombardment.

Schary, former production head of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, is now filming his first independent theatrical feature film, "Lonely Hearts." In 1955, the producer made an impressionistic study titled "The Battle of Gettysburg." It was nominated for an Academy Award.

Last week the American Broadcasting Company announced it had commissioned Warner Bros. to make a series of films, 90 minutes to two hours in length, for telecasting during the centennial.

Four Star Films, Inc., has sold its new Western series, "Wanted, Dead or Alive," to a sponsor for telecasting on the Columbia Broadcasting system. The sponsors will be Brown & Williamson Tobacco Co. The dramas will be seen at 8:30 to 9 p.m. on Saturdays beginning Sept. 6. Steve McQueen, former New York actor and newcomer to Hollywood TV, will have the leading continuing role.

Philharmonic TV Series Discussed for Autumn

By VAL ADAMS

(Copyright 1958 by The New York Times Co.)

NEW YORK—Robert Saudek Associates announced that it had obtained a sponsor for a television series featuring one-hour "Preview" concerts by the New York Philharmonic. Leonard Bernstein will be the conductor.

The company, an independent television producer and packager, said at least four concerts would be sponsored by the Lincoln division of the Ford Motor Co. in behalf of Lincoln and Continental automobiles.

Kenyon and Eckhardt, Inc., the advertising agency for Lincoln, declared that such a deal had been discussed but that "no contract has been signed."

It was reported there had been negotiations for the series to be televised by the Columbia Broadcasting System on Sunday afternoons during the 1958-59 season. The dates and time of broadcast are still pending.

The television series would consist of video tape recordings of the Philharmonic's "previews" to be done in Carnegie Hall on Thursday evenings. In an announcement several months ago, the Philharmonic said the "previews" will be as formally presented as concerts, with an informality stemming from the unpredictability of the way in which the conductors present their ideas.

The Philharmonic explained the conductors will be free to make any type of comments during the performance that will add to the enjoyment and understanding of the music.

Ginger Rogers, who has made guest appearances on various programs, will star on a special one-hour musical variety show over CBS-TV on Wednesday, Oct. 15, at 10 p.m. It will be produced in Hollywood by Bob Banner and sponsored by Pontiac.

"MacKenzie's Raiders," a film series starring Richard Carlson, will be televised over Channel 2 on Wednesdays from 7:30 to 8 p.m. beginning in October. It will be sponsored by Gallo wine and L&M cigarettes.

The series, which depicts border trouble along the Rio Grande soon after the Civil War, was produced by Ziv television programs. It is based upon the experiences of Col. Ranald S. MacKenzie, a Union Army officer, who later was in command of various Army posts along the Rio Grande.

FLOYD PATTERSON SHOWS HAND HE HOPES WILL KAYO ROY HARRIS

Mickey LOGUE

Roy's Survival Test

Those dear hearts and gentle people in Cut 'N' Shoot, Tex., are fundamentalists. If there is any law they obey to the letter, it is the law of self-preservation.

Roy Tipton Harris, favorite son of Cut 'N' Shoot and the fightin' Harries, climbs between the ropes at Wrigley Field, Los Angeles, Monday night pursuing primarily neither fame nor fortune.

Obviously Floyd Patterson's world heavyweight throne is an important goal. But it is not the most important. "The only reason I'd like to win it is to keep from getting whipped," Roy commented thoughtfully, putting a basic family drive on public display.

The Harris clan, man and boy, has been fighting and winning since grandpappy John Wesley Harris rode in from Oklahoma in 1913. "Cussin' Harris they called him for his colorfully embroidered prose.

"He never talked ordinary-like hardly a-tall," remembers one old-timer. "He jes' cussed. But nobody ever had to ast him twice 't what he meant."

Cussin' could be counted upon to match his words with action, and so could the 16 children he sired, especially Jack, now 61; Bob, now 51; and Henry, Roy's father, now 48.

Big Henry, so they say, used to be the "best fist, knee, knife, club and heel fighter" in the Big Thicket, picturesque title for the environs of Cut 'N' Shoot.

—Big Henry's Only Guy This Harris Feels

He licked Ed Dunnaway, Southern heavyweight champion, a couple of times in the '20s. But Big Henry and the other Harries reserved their most glorious fighting moments for depression days, when a major oil strike occurred in the area.

There ensued some colossal skull busters between the Cut 'N' Shooters and the "furriners" and Big Henry was bashing craniums with the best of 'em. It took the Texas Rangers to cool the feud.

And even now, not far from 50, Roy's pa would have been tough enough to play tackle for Bear Bryant at Texas A&M.

"There's just one man alive I'm frank to confess I'm not sure I could whip," Roy said recently. "That's my dad, Big Henry Harris. He's 6-2 1/2, weighs about 240 and he's still rough'n a stucco bathtub."

Big Henry reportedly wants Patterson beaten so badly that he has warned Roy, "Whup him or I'll whup you." However, the elder Harris smilingly denies this allegation.

Anyway, Roy is mighty keen on winning, and so far professionally he is unbeaten, having won 22 straight fights.

All were in Texas, so the California scuffle will be sort of an unveiling, putting Roy's talents, large or small, before the eyes of the nation.

Harris, now 25, has been fighting since he was six, when older brother Tobe swapped some ducks for boxing gloves and decided he needed a sparring partner. But, as mentioned, fighting is no novelty in Cut 'N' Shoot, where they say if you stand around long enough you'll get cut, and if you try to run you're liable to get shot.

Nevertheless, black-haired, glittery-eyed Roy is a strange combination of Li'l Abner, college graduate, army officer, backwoods schoolteacher and prize fighter.

—Challenger Shows All on Closed-Circuit TV

An upset triumph by the Texan could be the biggest boost for boxing since Jack Dempsey left Manassa, Colo., to upend huge Jess Willard.

Not since Jack Johnson departed the docks of Galveston to try his exceptionally clever hands in the realms of fistiana has a Texan owned the heavyweight championship. Johnson, a colored slugger, held the crown from 1908 to 1915, and ranks No. 1 in Nat Fleischer's all-time ratings, three notches ahead of Jack Dempsey and five ahead of Joe Louis.

"Awkward cleverness, fast hands, sneaky right, little power and a weak defense" are among the alleged Harris credentials. His victims include high-ranked Willie Pastrano, Willi Besmanoff, big Bob Baker and Charley Norius. He boasts nine knockouts.

At any rate, Harris sheds his mystery robes before the closed circuit television multitude Monday. And he could be the guy to shed a little light on what kind of a champion Floyd Patterson is.

Since kayoing ancient Archie Moore in November, 1956, 23-year-old Floyd has defended his crown twice, easily battering Hurricane Jackson and Pete Rademacher.

Patterson is a boxer-puncher. He posted 24 knockouts while winning 33 of 34 professional starts. He kayoed 14 of his last 15 opponents. His only loss was a questionable eight-round decision to former lightweight champ Joey Maxim, June 7, 1954.

Many predict greatness for Patterson. But first he must fight somebody. Maybe Harris is "it." However, the bookies rate him at least a 5-1 underdog.

It undoubtedly will be one of the lightest heavyweight championship matches on record, Patterson weighing 185 and Harris 192.

Cut 'N' Shooter Roy is anxious to keep the law of self preservation in his corner. But I'm looking for Patterson to deliver a 10-second trip to the canvas... unless they repeal the law of gravity before the eighth round.

Boston Slugs Yanks Williams Has Perfect Day

BOSTON (AP)—Boston put together three homers and Ted Williams 4-for-4 day to beat off a New York late inning challenge Sunday and defeat the league leaders, 6-5.

The victory was the third in succession for the Sox over the Yankees this season.

Sammy White (4), Don Buddin (9) and Dick Gernert (16) hit homers for Boston while Williams, dogged by a wrist injury most of the season, upped his average to .316.

Ike Delock, with an assist from Leo Kiely, registered his 11th triumph of the season and atoned for one of three defeats on his record.

Delock had held the Yanks in check, save for solo homers by pinch hitter Don Larsen and Andy Carey, until the eighth when Mickey Mantle unloaded one of his 400-foot homers.

HARRIS 6-1 UNDERDOG

Patterson Pick to Keep Crown Tonight

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Unbeaten Roy Harris, the modernized backwoodsman from Cut 'N' Shoot, Tex., will try to wrest the world heavyweight championship from young Floyd Patterson Monday night at Wrigley Field.

Black-haired, green-eyed Harris is a 6-1 underdog despite his 22 straight professional victories that include wins over Willie Pastrano, big Bob Baker and Willi Besmanoff.

Their scheduled outdoor 15-rounder may do a million-dollar business through closed-circuit television to 151 theaters in 133 cities. There will be no home television or radio.

However, the gate at Wrigley

Monday night's Patterson-Harris fight will be shown "live" at Loew's Grand theater over a closed TV circuit. Fight time is 10 p.m.

Field will be disappointing — probably less than the California record of $228,500. With tickets ranging from $5 to $30, that would require about 15,000 spectators.

When the match was originally signed for Patterson, 23, to make his third defense of the title against Harris, 25, promoter Bill Rosenzohn—staging his first fight—had hoped for a gate of more than $450,000.

Last month's Zora Folley-Pete Rademacher heavyweight fiasco in Los Angeles put the brakes on the local ticket sale.

Brawny Harris, who expects to weigh about 192 pounds to the champion's probable 188, hasn't fought in about 10 months.

A six-month hitch in the Army's Field Artillery as second lieutenant curtailed his ring activities.

Patterson of Mt. Vernon, N.Y., hasn't fought since last Aug.

ROY HARRIS Title's Hit Target

22, when he knocked out amateur Rademacher in the sixth round of their title fight at Seattle. That was his second defense of the crown he had won by belting out veteran Archie Moore in November, 1956. In his first defense, Floyd knocked out Tommy Hurricane Jackson, July 29, 1957.

Regardless of gate and theater-TV receipts, Patterson has been guaranteed a minimum of $210,000 and Harris has the distinction of being the first heavyweight challenger ever to receive a flat guarantee—$100,000.

The Weather Bureau Sunday forecast generally fair weather for the outdoor fight.

Champion and challenger were in Los Angeles Sunday, after breaking camp Saturday. Patterson was not as impressive in his concluding four weeks of training at Oceanside, Calif., as he had been in his earlier grooming at Monticello, N.Y.

During Harris' sparring sessions at Arrowhead Springs, Calif., the challenger was an "in and out" — impressive one day and apathetic the next.

He is an upright boxer with fast hands and nimble feet. He has an excellent left jab and a punishing left hook "thrown off the jab"—immediately after the jab. He also has a good right uppercut and a "sneaky right." However, in training he displayed defensive weaknesses—an immobile head and poor blocking.

Whether Harris can take a punch is a big question. In his MOBILE—It wasn't advertised but the Crackers celebrated Ben Downs-Bob Hartman Day at Hartwell Field Sunday as they smashed the pennant-minded Mobile Bears, 4-1.

Hartman notched a neat seven-hitter, walked only two and struck out six in becoming the first Southern Assn. pitcher to win 19 games this season.

Downs, the Little Rock castoff, knocked home all Cracker runs with a pair of home runs off Mobile ace Jake Striker, who throws the same way Big Ben bats—left-handed.

The victory in the rubber game of the three-game series left the Crackers with a 12-10 won-lost edge over the third-place Bears for the season and sent them home to Ponce de Leon Park refreshed for a series with the Birmingham Barons. First game will be Monday night at 7:45.

The Barons' 3-1 Sunday conquest of New Orleans leaves them still in possession of a 1/2-game, five percentage point lead over the Crackers.

Downs crashed his first homer in a leadoff role in the second inning, a 345-foot shot over the billboards in rightfield, putting the Crackers out front 1-0.

That's how the Hartman-Striker duel stayed until two men were out in the Cracker sixth. Then John DeMerit coaxed Striker for the third free pass he issued, and Mike Kranich ran his consecutive-game hitting streak to 15 with a single into left. DeMerit pulled up at second.

Striker made Downs look bad on two strikes before the husky veteran connected with a carbon copy of his first drive on an 0-2 pitch. The stock was Downs' 20th of the year, his ninth as a Cracker. It was also his fourth on the road trip, during which the Crackers posted a 4-3 record, and his fourth off southpaw hurling this month.

Hartman lost a bid for his fourth shutout when Bud Hutson belted one over the left-field scoreboard with two men out in the Bear half of the sixth. The stock was Hutson's 17th. The Cracker southpaw, whose record is now 19-9, allowed no more than one hit in any inning in coping his sixth decision in which only one run was scored against him.

The only inning in which he permitted two base runners was the sixth. Hutson lived on Poochie Hartfield's throwing error and Herb Olson drew a free ticket to first with two out.

Hartman, 2-1 for the year against the Bears, and Kranich started double plays that hauled him out of minor jams as he went the route for the 17th time in 26

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Home runs by Hector Lopez and Harry Chittid behind the four-hit pitching of Bob Grim gave the Kansas City Athletics a 4-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers Sunday and a sweep of their three-game series.

Patterson is a good puncher. He knocked out 14 of the last 15 men to face him. His 33 victories in 34 fights include 24 kayes. His only loss was on a questionable decision to ex-light heavyweight champion Joey Maxim, June 7, 1954.

The California State Athletic Commission announced that eight-ounce gloves will be used and that the mandatory eight-count after a knockdown will be waived. Three ring officials will score it on the 10-point must system, in which the winner of a round gets 10 points and the loser, nine or less.

THOSE EX-CRACKERS ARE ON A NATIONWIDE RAMPAGE

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

MOBILE—Former Atlanta Crackers are contributing much to the 1958 baseball chronicles across the breadth of the nation these sultry August weeks.

Ev Joyner smashed across seven runs, as Omaha pinned Ev's ex-Wichita mates to the wall, 10-8. His game-winning blow was the first homer off Red Murriff since April. Ex-Birmingham Baron Harry Byrd won his first decision with 2½ innings of hitless relief in the battle.

St. Paul's Leo Cristante, who won 24 games for the 1954 Crackers, is 4-1 for the year after a 7-3 triumph over Charleston. A ninth-inning error cost him his lone defeat—to Louisville, 1-0.

The record of Wichita's Vic Rehm shrank to 11-4 as two of the five homers he's been tagged for in 154 innings put him in the losing column twice.

John Blanchard's two-run blast gave Denver a 4-2 verdict, and Stan Palys' two-run sock won for Charleston, 2-0, despite a Rehm two-hitter.

Dick Donovan contributed most to the Chicago White Sox surge by going the route in seven of eight starts and winning six straight decisions. And his old cracker mate Art Fowler fired a four-hitter that bested Bud Podbielniak and gave Art and Spokane a 2-1 verdict over San Diego. Fowler's record is now 12-10.

Gene Mauch, now piloting Minneapolis and having a hard time keeping his batting average above .200, went 5 for 6 in a twin bill and was robbed of a hit that would have given a perfect day.

Jack Dittmer singled home the winning run in a 4-3 Phoenix victory over Seattle. He's hitting .315, ninth best in the Pacific Coast League.

Jack Hannah tied a Western League record by going the route in an 18-inning game and beating Colorado Springs, 4-3. Hannah (9-3) gave up 10 hits, fanned nine, walked one. The losers' Ollie Brantley relieved in the eighth inning and retired 26 consecutive Topeka batters before being tapped for a 16th-frame single.

Don Fralley joined Lewiston of the Northwest League, instead of reporting back to Jacksonville, because he wanted to be near his baby daughter, who is ill. When Fralley reported, manager Hillis Layne (.362) put himself on the disabled list and probably lost his chance to win the batting title. (He won't get enough at bats.)

Maconite Bobby Hendley, 9-4 at Cedar Rapids, has fanned 105 in 111 innings and his ERA of 2.59 is second best in the Three-I League.

Bill Gabler's home run beat San Antonio, 4-3, as Fort Worth capped its ninth decision in 10 extra-inning frays.

EX-SOUTHERN LEAGUERS ON PARADE — Eric Rodin, batting .316, whacked nine homers in 10 games and now has 24. Rodin, with 87 RBI, belted a 10th-inning round tripper that beat Victoria for Corpus Christi, 6-4. . . . Ex-NashVol Haven Schmidt smashed a grand-slam homer for Albuquerque. . . . Stan Roseboro, given his chance when Jim Snyder was injured, whacked two homers that sparked Indianapolis over Denver, 5-1. . . . Lou Klein, Ft. Worth pilot, hit safely in eight of his first 18 pinch-hit tries. . . . John Gabler is 17-4 at Denver, and Pilot Andy Cohen sees the ex-Birmingham Baron as big league timber. . . . Steve Kraly and Dick Kilasno are hurling 50-50 ball at Allentown and Binghamton in the Eastern League.

Leo Cristante Dick Donovan Gene Mauch

GEORGIA BOYS DEPT. . . . Charleston's Larry Osborne drove in 61 runs in 62 games over a two-month span, batting .322 during that time, and is a challenger for league RBI honors. The Atlantan batted in five runs with his 15th homer and two doubles in a recent game. . . . Ken Hilyer larruped a grand-slammer for Albany, N.Y., of the Eastern League against Binghamton.

DIAMOND DUST—Bernie Parrish, bonus guy from U. of Florida, is back with Albuquerque after suffering a broken finger. . . . Shot Johnston, ex-Auburnite, blasted one of three consecutive homers for Dubuque against Kokomo. . . . Paul Campbell, Pres. of the Louisville Club, defends Jim Pyburn (.291) with "He's looking great in the outfield. Don't let anybody fool you." . . . Jim McDaniel, who was heated off the Cracker roster in the winter draft, lashed six homers during a 12-game hitting binge for Salt Lake City. He has 23 in all. . . . Omaha's Phil Clark returned to Albany, Ga., Aug. 7 because of the death of his father. The right-hander has rejoined the hurling staff now. . . . Woody Smith played in 327 consecutive games for the Miami Marlins before a suspension made him sit one out.

Ben Dyer, Topeka utility man hitting .315, was bought by Wichita. . . . Rocky Nelson broke ex-Cracker Red Wingo's all-time homer record (34 in 1922) at Toronto. Rocky had 38 homers, 104 RBI through August and is called by International League Prexy Frank Shaughnessy "The greatest hitter I've ever seen in this league." . . . Milwaukee club Pres. Joe Calnes had some sharp words about Wichita's lagging attendance (84,995 with nine home games left) in a speech to the Wichita Rotarians. Baseball people believe that means the Wichita franchise is bound for either Atlanta or Jacksonville.

NAME TO REMEMBER—"Yo Yo" Davallillo, tiny star of the Havana Cubans in the International League. . . . Atlanta's Bob Hartman has beaten all Southern Association teams except Birmingham. He's faced the Barons only once and was not the pitcher of decision.

Mystery Shrouds State Tennis Meet

Willett's Seeded No. 1, But Who's This Murphy?

By GEORGE CUNNINGHAM

Frank Willett drew the top seed in the Georgia State Tennis Tournament which starts Monday . . . but mystery rides the Bitsy Grant Center baseline.

Arriving without portfolio—an absolute unknown—from Los Angeles Sunday was a gentleman named Jerry Murphy who could be the surprise of the 64 strong men's singles field.

"He called up Sunday as I was making up the schedule," tournament coordinator Jack Rodgers said. "He said

Frank Willett was going to be in town this week and would like to enter the tournament.

"I've never heard the name Murphy before. But just being from Los Angeles (a tennis-mad town) is enough recommendation to watch out for him."

The mysterious Mr. Murphy has this work out at the start. He goes against tough Chuck Straley Monday, and as Rodgers said, "If he gets by Chuck, he won't be a mystery any longer."

Willett received the top ranking over defending champion Allen Morris of Asheville, N. C., by virtue of his superior standing in Southern Lawn Tennis Assn. circles.

Behind, in order, the top two are Bitsy Grant, Bob Nichols, Bill Bonham, Lindsey Hopkins, Pensacola's Larry Caton and Harry Thompson. Morris and Caton are the only non-residents of Atlanta.

In the women's division, Belton, S.C.'s Janie Haynie drew the top perch. Following were Betty Jo Braselton, Inez Long and Kathy Barnett. Haynie was a finalist last year, yielding to Evelyn Cowan who won't defend.

In other divisions, Vince Connerat was seeded first in the senior men's, Charles Benedict in the 18-under boys, Barnett in 18-under girls, Bob Hardcastle in 15-under boys, Belton, S.C.'s Shirley Holliday in 15-under girls, Athens' Ham Magill in 13-under girls, Ellie Howell in 13-under girls and Bill Shippey in 11-under boys.

Barring Murphy and other possible hazards, the form sheet finds Willett and Morris colliding in a power match Sunday for the title. Both veteran swingers pack much muscle, a commodity that appears commonplace among the seeded players.

All but Grant and Caton, a Tulane sophomore, rely on the big game, rather than the cat-and-mouse tactics that made Bitsy the idol of the tennis world.

Doubles play probably will begin Tuesday, Rodgers said.

UNHAPPY GIANT FAN SLUGS UMPIRE DIXON

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—National League umpire Hal Dixon, 10 days out of the hospital after a stomach operation, showed up for Sunday's Chicago-San Francisco game with a taped nose—result of an unprovoked clobbering by an unhappy baseball fan.

Dixon said he and fellow umpire Ken Burkhardt were set upon without warning by a stocky man while they were having a beer Saturday night in a Fisherman's Wharf bar.

The man belted Dixon in the face, felling him, slugged Burkhardt on the side of the head, then ran out.

The umpires reported the incident to police. Police Lt. Tim Sullivan said Sunday their description was vague and an arrest was unlikely.

Dorothy Kirby Seeks Women's Am Crown

~~~~~ By Bert Prather ~~~~~

For Atlanta's Dorothy Kirby this week's National Women's Amateur at Wee Burn Country Club, Darien, Conn., holds fond memories.

It was at this same club in 1939 that Dot, a rising young star, surprised the golfing world by reaching the finals of the U.S. Amateur. Though she fell to the seasoned Betty Jameson, 3 and 2, this established the charming Atlantan on the national golf scene.

After being deprived of the title again in 1947 by fellow Atlantan Louise Suggs in the finals at Franklin Hills, Mich., Dorothy finally reached her goal by taking the championship in 1951 at St. Paul, Minn.

No longer an active tournament follower, it goes without saying that Dot harbors little hope of winning this blue ribbon classic again. However, she'll be in there pitching when she opens against twice National Junior champion Judy Eller of Old Hickory, Tenn., Tuesday. Both Dot and Judy drew first round byes.

Georgia State and Southern Amateur queen Mary Ann Reynolds of Albany, also drew a first round bye and will meet Mrs. Arthur Flash of Scarsdale, N.Y., Tuesday. Mary Crawford of Americus; Atlanta City champion Joyce Denson, and Mrs. Tom Burdshaw of Griffin, the other three Georgia entries, will see first round action on Monday. Miss Denson, a semifinalist in last week's National Junior Girls' at Greenwich, Conn., drew veteran Betty Kerby of Akron, Ohio, as her first round foe. Miss Crawford, a two-time Georgia State champion, clashes with Mrs. Fred Pafford Jr. of Sewickley, Pa., while Mrs. Burdshaw plays Joan Weeks of Modesto, Calif.

Georgians will be keeping an ear to the ground for news from another far-flung front this week. Their interest, of course, will be in the performances of Jerry Greenbaum, Atlanta; Mickey McMahon, Carrollton; Boog Layton, Waycross, and Jimmy Allen of Athens, in the International Jaycee championship opening Monday at Tucson, Ariz. The first two rounds Monday and Tuesday will decide the team championship and also qualifiers for the 72-hole individual championship Wednesday through Saturday.

Hugh Royer's fine victory in last week's Southern Amateur at Birmingham marked the eighth Georgia victory in this event since 1946. George Hamer, who like Royer hails from Columbus Country Club, was the 1946 champ. This started a string of four Georgia triumphs. Tommy Barnes of Atlanta won it in 1947 and 1948 and another Atlantan, Gene Dahlbender Jr., grabbed it in 1949. Macon's Arnold Blum captured the crown in 1951 and again in 1956 while Charles Harrison of Atlanta won a spectacular victory over Billy Joe Patton in the finals of the 1955 tournament. During this stretch Georgians were runners-up four times. Two of the tournaments were all-Georgia finals.

CHIP SHOTS: Jake Croxon, treasurer and USGA Sectional Affairs Committee member, proved that he is not only a good official but a capable player as well by whipping Mark Smith 9 and 8 for the Bobby Jones Club title Friday. Jake had 72 for the first 18 holes and 36 going out in the afternoon. . . . Also making the headlines at Bobby Jones Club last weekend was Ed Schewe. Ed shot a 2-under-par 34-35-69, which included an ace on No. 3, and a birdie 3 on No. 4. His ace was made with a nine iron. Playing partner was M. A. Sandifer. . . . Renee Morris, 15-year-old, is East Lake's new girls' champion. She edged Shelley Malone for the crown. Sandra Miller was first flight B division winner with Paulette Erickson taking runner-up prize. B division went to Susan Ellison. . . . East Lake junior boys competition opens Aug. 25th. . . . Ansley GC will be host to City Girls' championship Wednesday through Friday.

Pro Jack MacDowell reports Cherokee Town and Country Club's new twilight league got off to a rousing start with Franklin John's quartet nudging captain Jack Fraser's crew by one stroke. Wilson Brooks won individual low gross with a par 36 for the nine holes. Tom Adair was best in the "rookie" group. . . . In AWGA play at Capital City, Dottie Garlington was catfite winner with plus 5. Laura Clark, plus 4, and Lila Callahan, plus 3, followed. Maxine Souther, Dot Cagle, Eileen Ginnell, M. L. McKie and Flora Broadbear tied for low putts with 30 each. . . . Mike Cleveland reigns as king of North Fulton's golfers. Mike dethroned Dan Connell 5 and 4 for the club crown. . . . Warning to the city's feminine golfers: Keep an eye on Mary (Mrs. D. R.) Green of Druid Hills. Mrs. Green, who moved here a few months ago, toured the dogwood layout in 75 strokes Friday. And it could have been even better, reports DHGC's assistant pro Phil Kelsch. It seems Mrs. Green was only one over par going to the long 18th. Her tee shot and a fairway wood left her 30 yards shy of the green, but then her troubles began. She took five to get down and wound up with a double bogey seven.

David Morris and Jim Folden have gained semifinals in Paul Levin's Adams Park Club championship along with Bobby Lemming, A. T. Harmon and C. L. (Ceddy) Jones will battle for the other semifinal spot. . . . Add "hidden" profit: Official PGA figures credit young Ken Venturi with netting only $9,000 for his victory in the Genesee-Chicago Open but the fact is he actually collected $14,000. His bosses at U. S. Rubber gave him a bonus of $5,000. Incidentally, Claude Bond has a "bonus" arrangement for pros in next month's SEPGA at Matt Warren's Savannah Golf Club.

Stamps' 212 Takes State Open Victory

Steady Dalton Pro Outlasts Pursuers Ploeger, Dahlbender

Special to The Constitution

BRUNSWICK—Jim Stamps, 37-year-old Dalton, Ga., professional, steadied and came home the winner in the Georgia State Open Golf Tournament here Sunday.

Stamps turned the trick although he went out in 37, one-over-par, and was only able to equal par in the crucial final nine for a 73.

His 54-hole total of 212 was two strokes ahead of a pair of amateurs, Bill Ploeger of Darien and Gene Dahlbender Jr., of Atlanta. Ploeger birdied on a play-off to take low amateur honors.

The day started with Stamps two strokes in the lead followed by Ploeger and then Dahlbender one stroke back.

Young Ploeger experienced initial troubles and was two over par on the front nine. He came in one-under-par for a 38-35-73-214.

Dahlbender, who at 34 years old is exactly twice the age of Ploeger, picked up a stroke with

Suggs Back Four Strokes

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—Bonnie Randolph, seeking her first major title in five years as a professional, protected her lead in the $5,000 Women's Heart of America Invitational Golf Tournament with a second-round, 3-under-par 72 and a 36-hole total of 142 Sunday.

The veteran Betty Jameson, San Antonio, Tex., moved into second place with a 73 and a 146 total.

Defending champion Louise Suggs of Sea Island, Ga., who has won every major golf crown available to women, also claimed the 6,012-yd. par-75 Blue Hills course in 72 for 147.

Allergies Cause Fatal Bee Stings

The ordinary bee sting is more annoying than serious except in persons who are allergic to the venom; deaths have been reported.

TODAY'S HEALTH HINT—
A rested mother uses better sense in handling her children.

after serious reactions. Fortunately, incidents of this nature are rare. Beekeepers often develop immunity after repeated stings so that local reactions are minimal; there is no discomfort, swelling, or pain. But to maintain immunity, they must receive fresh stings from time to time.

Bee stings are followed by a red, swollen hive that burns and itches. It usually disappears within 24 hours. Multiple bites by a swarm of bees cause nausea, diarrhea, and a feeling of faintness.

Scratching and squeezing the area drive more venom from the embedded poison sac into the tissues. This stinger is an accident of nature. In other insects it would be an ovipositor, an organ used to deposit eggs. But the ordinary female bee does not lay eggs and, to compensate, it must have turned into a stinger.

The sting should be cleaned with soap and water followed by the application of a soothing lotion or an antihistamine cream. Remove the stinger with tweezers or the fingers, if it can be found. If difficulty in breathing occurs shortly after a bee sting, obtain medical care immediately as this symptom may indicate allergy to the venom. A grave reaction may take place unless cortisone or adrenalin is available.

RHYME A DAY

By OLLIE REEVES

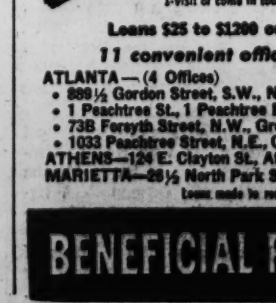

"Fabulous Las Vegas, one of the world's capitals of pleasure, suffers little from the present recession. Food, housing, drink and the odds at the gaming tables keep rising but the fun lovers continue to spend."—Gossip column quote.

There is no doubt, great men who preach... great sermons get discouraged when... their finest efforts fail to reach... the hardened hearts of sinful men... and there's no consolation in... the thought there is a woeful lack... of progress in their war on sin... for sin is good at fighting back.

That is the way things seem to go... with everyone who tries to do... his best and yet they ought to know... the sinner has his troubles, too... and when you start to sympathize... with people who have met defeat... one must include the sinful guys... who gamble, swindle, drink and cheat.

Somebody should stand up for them... because they have their troubles, too... just like the people who condemn them for the foolish things they do... their girl friends are a big expense... the cost of liquor's out of sight... and any man with common sense... will find it cheaper to do right.

(But it takes a lot of living to discover it.)

GOREN ON BRIDGE

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As South you hold:
A 10 6 WAK Q J 10 4 4 K J 6
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 heart Pass 2 hearts Pass
3 hearts Pass 5 hearts Pass
What action do you take?
A.—Partner hardly can have less than a solid six or seven-card diamond suit, which is all you need for a slam in hearts. You cannot contemplate a grand slam, for if partner had the ace of clubs he no doubt would have taken time out to show it. Because of your club holding it would be hazardous to permit partner to play the hand, therefore your correct bid is six hearts.

Q. 2—As South you hold:

A 2 2 J 5 3 4 10 6 4 2 10 7 5 3
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 spade 2 hearts Pass Pass
Double Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—Two spades. We would decline to bid our "best suit" in the interest of economy. This is the cheapest action open to us. No remote thought is to be given to a pass.

Q. 3—As South you hold:

A 6 2 5 4 A Q 7 6 5 3 4 7 5 4 2
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 spade 2 hearts Pass 3
What action do you take?
A.—Pass. There is no need to rescue partner. Inasmuch as he has not been doubled, you are not to assume that he is in trouble. A bid by you is more apt to incite him to further action.

Q. 4—As South you hold:

A J 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 K 10 8 4
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 spade 2 hearts Pass 3
What action do you take?
A.—Three no trump. Obviously you wish to play for game with this powerful hand and no indirect methods are necessary.

Q. 5—As South you hold:

A A 8 5 2 Q J 9 7 10 6 4 2
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 spade Pass 2
What is your response?
A.—This hand contains 11 points in high cards and is therefore too strong for a no trump response. The choice, therefore, simmers down to two hearts or two diamonds. Our preference is for the latter as less apt to lead to complications. Whenever we can reasonably avoid a takeout to two in a very weak four card major, we try to do so. In this case, if partner has four fairly good hearts, he may conveniently show them over your two-diamond bid.

Q. 6—As South you hold:

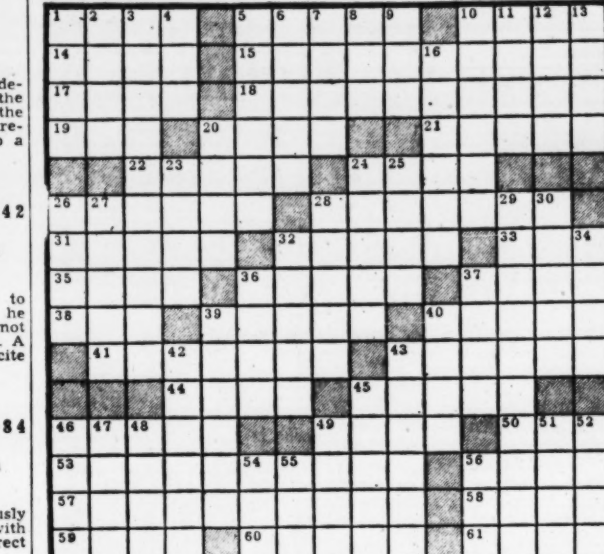

A K 7 3 Q 8 4 6 K 6 4 2 A Q 6
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 heart Pass 2 no trp. Pass
3 hearts Pass 2
What do you bid now?
A.—The suggested call is a return to three hearts. There is no occasion for any more drastic action at this time. You are warned not to get too excited. Do not lose sight of the fact that your two no trump bid promised 13, 14 or 15 points. You have 14.

Q. 7—As South you hold:

A J 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 10 3 2 K 8 A 2
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 spade Pass 3 clubs Pass
3 spades Pass 4 spades Pass 7
What do you bid now?
A.—Opposite partner's jump shift.

Scoutmaster, 81, Varies Hobbies To Stay Young

ADAIRSVILLE—Willis M. Boyd says that he is able to stay young because he just "doesn't associate with old folks." At 81, he is living proof that you can stay young, and his constant association with young folks could easily be the reason. Willis Boyd is the oldest scoutmaster in the country and has the longest continuous service record.

Another way to stay young, according to Boyd, is to have a variety of interests. If you call on him at his mountain-top home, Hightonsome, near Adairsville, you are liable to find him playing Beethoven on his Steinway, or budding a peach tree, or feeding a pet crow, or repairing some child's broken toy.

Goes Camping With Scout Troop

If you go on a Saturday, you might not find Boyd home. He goes camping with his scout troop every third Saturday night, cold or hot, rain or shine. Boyd's interests aren't exclusively with scouts: He is organist at the Adairsville Methodist Church and has been for 65 years; he has taught a Sunday School class for boys for 39 years; he has served in an official capacity the Adairsville Masonic Lodge, the Bartow County Education Assn., the American Legion, the PTA, the Lions Club, the Emory University Alumni Assn., the Columbia University Alumni Assn. and many other organizations.

Boyd holds the Silver Star medal for gallantry in action during World War I. He has continuously lived up to the Scout's pledge, "On my honor I will do my best..."

Eleven-Year-Old Admiral

C. E. Gregory III, grandson of the Georgia Historical Commission's director C. E. Gregory, has been appointed Admiral of the Fleet in the "Great Navy of the Sovereign State of Oklahoma." Greg is only 11, but since the commission requires obedience from all "tadpoles, bullfrogs, swamp rabbits and goldfish," he should be happy with the commission.

Greg acted as aid-de-camp to Oklahoma Public Service Commissioner James A. Guthrie, personal representative of the Oklahoma governor, at the dedication of the Vann House at Spring Place. His chief job was to tote the flag of Oklahoma around until it was formally presented to Gov. Griffin.

Greg ought to like the signature, too. The commission was signed by the lieutenant governor, Cowboy Pink Williams.

Department of Useless Information

An electronic gadget has been developed which can, according to a press handout, determine whether a person standing before it is a man or a woman. So can I. The gadget reacts to the amount of radiated body heat. Women, if you didn't know it already, put out more heat... because men's trousers inhibit heat radiation and women's stockings do not. A couple—she in slacks and he in Bermuda shorts—could confuse the electronic gadget no end.

Word comes from Las Vegas, Nev., that legal home of the one-armed bandit which makes such a whirling, soothing noise as it takes your money, that a Convention Center costing five million dollars is nearing completion... a place to sort of herd up all the suckers in one bunch?

Car Overtakes in Cobb, Killing Marietta Man

Augusta Woman and 4 Others Die

A Marietta man was killed Sunday when his car overturned on Shallowford road in Cobb County, near the Fulton County line.

Warehouse and Dock Burns at Savannah

SAVANNAH (UPI)—A fire destroyed a warehouse and part of a dock at the central of Georgia docks in Savannah Saturday night.

Warehouse L at berth 17 was destroyed in the blaze. Robert E. Frankenfield, chairman of the Georgia Ports Authority, said the damage caused by fire would not hamper the purchase of the Central of Georgia docks by the state for a price of more than 400 million dollars. He said the purchase price would be adjusted.

IS DEADLIEST

U.S. 17 Lists 39 Fatalities During Year

United States Highway 17, which runs 134 miles along Georgia's Atlantic coast, was the state's deadliest highway in 1957, just as it was in 1956.

The State Patrol lists 39 fatalities on that route in 1957, or one death for each 3.4 miles of the highway in Georgia. In 1956, there were 24 fatalities on the coastal route, or one for each 5.6 miles.

The safest road in the state last year, according to Patrol records, was U.S. 25, which had only three fatalities along its 204 miles—or one for each 68 miles.

A close second for safest honors was U.S. 221. There were four fatalities along its 258 miles last year, or one for each 64.5 miles. That route had by far the best record in 1956 with only two fatalities, or one for each 129 miles.

The most heavily traveled road in Georgia, U.S. 41, had a record of 35 deaths, or one each 11.5 miles in 1957. In the previous year, there were 50 fatalities or one each 8.1 miles.

Patrol records list a total of 401 fatalities on all of the 5,386 miles of federally-numbered roads in the state. That equals one death for each 23 miles.

By far the safest—at least statistically—are the roads not in the state or federal system.

Cobb County police said Charles Arthur Franklin, 46, of 128 Brown Rd., Marietta, lost control of his car and was fatally injured when it plunged from the road.

Five other persons were killed in Georgia traffic over the weekend.

Mrs. Gertrude Ellison Jones, 52, of Augusta, was killed when she was struck by a car while she was walking along the shoulder of the Fort Gordon Highway near Augusta.

Mrs. Mary H. Etheridge, 62, of Macon, died Sunday of injuries received Friday night when a small foreign car in which she was riding was struck from the rear on a Bibb County road.

Leroy Chancey, 12, and Kenneth Wooten, 8, of Offerman were hit by a car and killed Saturday when they rode their bicycles from a side road onto U.S. 82 near Patterson, the patrol said.

Also killed Saturday was Willie Joe Elders, 49, of Aragon. The patrol said his car struck an underpass abutment near Rockmart.

3 Killed Here Over Weekend

Three persons were slain in Atlanta during the weekend.

Sgt. J. E. Helms of the homicide squad said the victims, all Negroes, were Arthur Collier, 36, of 796 Broomhead Ave., SW; Willie Brown, 43, of 110 Hulsey St., NW; and Walter Williams, 28, of 688 Larkin St., SW.

Sgt. Helms said Collier died from chest stab wounds Saturday night. Brown was beaten to death Saturday night. Williams died from abdomen wounds Saturday afternoon.

Fire Damages Restaurant And Plumbing Firm Here

Fire heavily damaged a downtown Atlanta restaurant and a plumbing firm early Sunday morning.

Firemen from six companies fought the two-hour blaze that swept the S & S Dining Room and the D. N. Landers Plumbing Co., both of Marietta street and Tabernacle place, NW.

Police said the fire apparently started in the kitchen of the restaurant. The plumbing firm was heavily damaged by water.

Cause of the blaze was not determined, police said.

23 NYC Cars Jump Track

UTICA, N. Y. (AP)—Twenty-three cars of a New York Central freight train were derailed near Union Station here early Sunday. All four main line tracks were blocked.

A Central spokesman said all passenger trains would be re-routed via the line's West Shore division. He said that would mean some schedule delays.

No injuries were reported.

3 in DeKalb Injured In a 3-Car Collision

A three-car collision injured three persons in DeKalb County Sunday afternoon.

Injured were Kenneth Bowen, 20, of 1056 Longshore Dr., Decatur, cuts and bruises; Mrs. Claud Carman, 27, of 2287 Hillside Ave., Decatur, broken arm and ribs; and Mrs. Jack Bowen, 37, of 1056 Longshore Dr., Decatur, broken arm.

DeKalb patrolmen E. J. Mitchell and L. R. Fowler reported that a car driven by Robert E. Grant, 17, of 1352 Derrwood Dr., Decatur, ran a stop sign at Covington road and Midway road. They said cars driven by Claud G. Carman, 41, of 2287 Hillside Ave., Decatur, and Jack W. Bowen, 44, of 1056 Longshore Dr., Decatur, crashed into the Grant car.

Park Disturbance

Police reported they cut short a brewing gang fight in Maddox Park Sunday night.

Officer W. J. Clower said Ronnie Grady Ward, 21, of 1086 W. Marietta St., and Garey Johnson, 19, of 805 Bedford St., caused the disturbance.

Johnson waved a knife and was arrested at the park by Officer Clower, police reported. Ward ran, officers said, and five squad cars surrounded him on Loveless avenue, NW. Police grabbed Ward when he fell in a field.

Maddox Park has been a trouble spot between teen-agers and police in recent months, Officer Clower said, and many threats have been made against him.

Ward was jailed on five counts of disorderly conduct, interference, cursing, resisting arrest, and drunk in city park. Johnson was jailed on charges of violating knife ordinance and drinking in city park.

Dead in Church

A 65-year-old Negro man was found dead Sunday in the vestibule of the Emory Baptist Church.

DeKalb County police identified him as Sam Rogers of 637 McGruder St., NE. He was employed as church janitor for 18 months until his release on June 6, the Rev. J. H. Hunter, pastor, said.

Rogers' body was discovered about 8 a.m. by Willie Armour, janitor. A blunt bread knife was at Rogers' side.

Police said an inquest will be held Monday. They said there was no indication his death was caused by violence.

Budget-Wise Cooks Switch to Chicken To Cut Down on Soaring Meat Bills

By VIRGINIA DYSARD
Atlanta Constitution Food Editor

Everyone is talking about the cost of living, and food prices are ones that are being discussed as much or more than most items. Since red meat is usually of most interest to men and women alike they are the ones that are quoted over and over again.

In all the market reports in newspapers and on radio and TV red meats are quoted as being high. And one way to beat the prices is to switch to chicken. This week chicken is reported to be a budget buy, reflecting large supplies.

Chicken need not be fried all the time or baked, but should be served in different ways. Take this Spanish chicken stew. The chicken is stewed in olive oil for about an hour, scarcely any water added. This keeps the chicken moist and succulent without drowning out all the flavor. Artichoke hearts, along with other vegetables, are added later for an exotic touch. You can leave the chicken whole, if you like (easy to carve that way) or cut it into individual serving pieces if that suits better.

SPANISH CHICKEN STEW (Pollo Bilbaina)

- 1 (5-lb.) stewing chicken, whole or cut up
- 2 to 3 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 12 small whole new potatoes, peeled
- 2 carrots, diced
- 1½ cups water
- 1 pkg. frozen peas or fresh peas
- 1 pkg. frozen artichoke hearts
- 2 tablespoons flour

Place chicken in olive oil in large, heavy pot. Add salt, cover, turn heat as low as possible and steam chicken in oil for 1 hour. (Chicken should not brown.) Add potatoes, carrots and water; cover, continue cooking over lowest heat 1 hour longer or until chicken is very tender, adding more water during cooking, if necessary. Add frozen peas and artichokes, cook until frozen blocks can be broken up, cook 5 minutes longer. Skim fat from top of sauce. Mix flour with liquid from casserole to make thin paste, add this to sauce, cook until sauce is smooth and thickened. Serve vegetables with chicken on large platter. Makes 12 servings.

If you are "fixing" the little dinner for only four or fewer, you can have baked chicken and stuffing, too, by serving this chicken and stuffing big-rade. It's an orange and lemon flavored enriched bread stuffing, with precisely the right amount of sherry added, placed beneath quarters of a large frying chicken.

CHICKEN AND STUFFING BIGARADE

- 2 tps. grated lemon rind
- 1 tsp. grated orange rind

- ½ cup orange juice
- 2 tbsps. lemon juice
- ½ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
- 2 tbsps. sherry
- 1½ quarts ½-inch soft bread cubes
- ½ cup chopped parsley
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1 (3-lb.) frying chicken, quartered

Place 1 teaspoon lemon rind, orange rind, orange juice, lemon juice and brown sugar into a small saucepan. Bring to a boil and continue simmering for 20 minutes. Remove from heat and add sherry. Combine soft bread cubes, parsley, salt and remaining lemon rind. Place bread mixture in bottom of a lightly greased (9-inch) square baking dish. Top with chicken. Pour half of the sauce over chicken and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 45 minutes. Pour remaining sauce over chicken and cook for an additional 30 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

Sparkling Tucker Woman Wins Homemaker Title

By NANCY BUTTS
"Mother, you surely weren't born a tom boy!"

These were the words Mrs. F. C. Blair, 5th District Homemaker of the Year, heard as she climbed down from her son's tree house.

The striking brunette with sparkling blue eyes may not have been born a tom boy, but she has many other talents. Cooking, sewing, refinishing furniture, and canning and flower arranging are among the everyday business of the five-foot housewife from Tucker.

By winning the 5th District Homemakers title, Mrs. Blair will automatically enter the Homemaker of the Year in Georgia competition in October. Women from each congressional district will compete at the Southeastern Fair.

HAS 2 CHILDREN

Mrs. Blair has two children, a daughter, Carol, who is 12, and a son, Steve, who is 10. Her husband is a florist, and his handiwork is seen around their attractive home, as well as that of his talented wife.

The Tucker Homemakers Club entered Mrs. Blair in the district competition after she was selected Homemaker of Tucker for 1958 in May. Her outstanding contributions within the community, plus an outgoing personality and natural ability as a civic and church leader, made Mrs. Blair the natural selection.

In Tucker she has been active in many organizations, mostly centered around work with young people. She is the neighborhood chairman for the Girl Scouts in Tucker, and has her own troop, of which her daughter is a member.

As director of the Tucker Community Assn., Mrs. Blair helped organize a youth center, of which she and the population of Tucker are very proud. She was also past chairman of the American Division of the Women's Club.

CHURCH WORK

In the Tucker Presbyterian Church, Mrs. Blair is secretary and treasurer of her Sunday school class, and she and her husband are adult advisers.

Carol and Steve, the Blair's attractive children, have their own household duties for which they are responsible. Carol cleans up the kitchen each evening and keeps her room neat, and she is following in the footsteps of her mother, by having won first place in Tucker for the junior dress review and second place with her biscuits. Steve cuts the grass and takes out the garbage. He and his father have built a tree house in the back yard, which also has a badminton court and comfortable lawn chairs. As for Steve's room "he makes an attempt to keep it straight," according to his mother.

The kitchen in the Blair household, like the rest of the home, is done in Early American. Because Mrs. Blair is short, she has three large closets, rather than shelves which might be difficult to reach.

Much of her time is spent in the kitchen making jellies, cakes, and canning. She cooks two meals a day for the family.

Around the house, flower arrangements add the extra touch. The charming homemaker is an expert at arranging flowers in many different ways.

She makes practically all of her dresses, as well as those of her daughter, and the curtains around the house were made by her hand.

In the comfortable den, in which Mrs. Blair claims the family "lives" most of the time, a huge fireplace forms the centerpiece. When judges were walking about her home at one time, making notes on the furniture and decorations, Steve had his ideas about making his mother a winner.

"Momma, if we could just have a fire, I know you'd win," he exclaimed.

It's easy to understand why the homemakers in Tucker put so much confidence in so versatile vivacious and friendly a person. Mrs. Blair would be an asset to any community!

Hair Styles Hit As Ignoring Face

By MARY PRIME
NEW YORK (UPI)—The rage for imported hair fashions makes American women look like top-heavy bottles and unmade beds, says hair stylist Eddie Senz.

"The American female has too much of the herd instinct. She has let herself be talked into the unmade-bed sloppiness of the Italian look, the top heavy-bottle look of the bouffant, and the formless mass of the sack. Now we are about to see women turned into reproductions of Madame Recamier," said Senz. Madame Recamier was a French society beauty and wit who died in 1849.

Senz, who is the hair stylist for movie studios for 25 years and now has his own business. He followed in his father's footsteps. His father did hair styles for silent film stars.

MOST BEAUTIFUL

"American women are the most beautiful in the world. They keep fit, agile, alert and active. They have a charming casualness, a fresh-faced forthrightness unmatched anywhere. So why do they borrow hair styles from a long-dead French era? What's wrong with keeping American women American?" he said.

Senz described the strictly Yankee hair-do as "unobtrusive, simply coiffed to stay neat, clean and out of the way with the least amount of fuss and curl."

"French women ignore the shape of the face when choosing a hair style. They make the hair a decorative ornament. That's fine—if you have a perfect face. But nearly every female alive is competing with the naturally beautiful woman. In striving for this goal, some women lose sight of the fact that every whim of fashion is not for them."

HIDE IMPERFECTIONS

"You should choose a style which hides imperfections. For example, a nose is big only in proportion to the rest of the face. To make a larger nose appear smaller, you must increase the area of the face with a hair style or hat," he said.

"If you want to look different, go to an expert. Few people can judge what's becoming to themselves because they don't see themselves without bias," he said.

Senz charged that too many hairdressers are not qualified and only are in the business to make money. "It's a known fact that women are too gullible when it comes to beauty," said Senz.

GOOD HAIRDRESSER

A good hairdresser will find out what style a woman needs, whether she can afford constant care or can set it herself. Budget the maintenance of hair as you would up-keep of a car, he advised.

The Senz "budget:" For one year, the cost runs from $455 to $500. This includes an initial bleach, regular retouching, weekly shampoos and sets, cuts every six weeks and permanents three a year. It does NOT include tips. Crew-cut, anyone?

Celestine Sibley

A Stormy Young Man

When darkness begins to close in on the beautiful red hills of Jackson County and the fields and woods and small towns take on the peaceful tones of an old painting, I wonder if the people there reflect on murder.

Do they remember that a dark, nice looking man with a flashing smile, came in to their county one June night two years ago, killed and disappeared?

You wonder as you drive through the tranquil countryside what it must be like with a man who has shot down an old man he never saw before and fled into the soft Georgia night. Rocky Rothschild said A. D. Allen Jr., told him to wait in an old road across from the Charles Drake home and he would pick him up. If he couldn't wait there, he said, he was to leave his handkerchief in the road and follow the power lines to a place where an old house had burned and only a lone chimney stood sentinel in some weeds.

Rothschild said when he left the house where an elderly man lay dying and his terrified wife screamed in fear and in grief, he noticed three things—three peaceful commonplace things. Lights were on at the ball park where a high school game was in progress, a dog barked. And the power lines stood out like dark ribbons against the sky.

He followed the power lines to the old chimney, he said, and presently Allen picked him up. Within a matter of minutes he had changed his clothes, as Allen drove, slipping out of the "working" gear of coveralls, soft-soled shoes, cap and stocking mask and disposed of them in bushes along the roadside. Then, he said, Allen took him to a spot in the woods where there was a big, flat rock and told him to wait there and he would return and conduct him to safety.

"What did you think about as you waited there on that rock in the woods?" I asked Rothschild.

He and his wife sat across the table from me in the Jackson County jail, eating a lunch of ham and biscuits and cream gravy. He paused in serving himself some gravy and said, "I tell you what you think about. You think about your whole life and how you came to be where you are—waiting in the woods, wondering if you'd killed a man."

"They say a drowning man reviews his whole life in the last seconds before he dies and I guess I reviewed mine."

He picked up his fork and after a moment he smiled. "That was part of the time," he said. "The rest of the time I was wondering if A. D. would come back at all and if he didn't how I would get out of there."

Rothschild is an odd mixture of a practical criminal complaining because a robbery was botched by poor planning and inadequate staff and a chastened, conscience-stricken man who wants to change.

"You have to have two people on any robbery where there's more than one person to watch," he explained earnestly to a photographer. "If I'd had help, somebody to watch Mrs. Drake, I wouldn't have lost that second it took Mr. Drake to get his gun. But when he shot at me . . . well, you know what they say about self-preservation being the first law of nature?"

In the next breath he speaks just as earnestly of the kind of life he hopes to lead when he becomes eligible for a parole 20-odd years from now. Since he's been in jail he's written a poem which begins:

"Yes, my freedom is gone for a long, long time.

But at last now I have peace of mind."

When you drive through the beautiful country with its brilliant colors muted by the twilight, it's hard to imagine murder and violence and a strange stormy young man lying on a rock listening to crickets, looking at the stars and thinking of the strange, twisted turn his life has taken.

MARRIAGE TOLD
Mrs. Wayne Rivers Jr.

Joyce Boring Is Bride of Mr. Rivers

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Valentine Gasser of Charleston, S.C., announce the marriage of their daughter, Joyce Boring, to Wayne Kirby Rivers Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Rivers of Atlanta.

The ceremony took place at Woodland Acres, at John's Island, S.C., the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. A. E. Rawl and Dr. Rawl. The Rev. W. C. Stackhouse officiated in the presence of the immediate families.

Mrs. Rawl was her sister's matron of honor and Mr. Rivers was best man for his son.

The bride is a graduate of Ashley Hall in Charleston. She received a B.S. from Newberry College, an M. Ed. from the University of Florida, and is now doing graduate study in mathematics at Georgia Tech.

Mr. Rivers attended North Fulton High School here and holds a B.S. in electrical engineering and an M.S. in physics from Georgia Tech.

Fast Pace Is Hard On Sleep

Big city dwellers, in New York, Chicago, Atlanta, Los Angeles or any of the others, on the average get less restful sleep than their country cousins. This doesn't necessarily mean that Atlantans, for instance, stay up later than the folks in East Cupcake.

It's simply that the pace of big town living is so much faster, the tensions so much greater, and the noise so much more intense, that it is harder to woe sleep in the concrete jungle than it is under the elms.

Work, worry, and excessive weariness—these can be the foes of sleep. Where else are they more prevalent than in big cities?

There are two requirements for rest. The first is relaxation; the second, a comfortable bed. You cannot expect to function all day at top speed and maximum tension, pop into bed, and drift off quickly into deep slumber. It takes a while for mind and muscle to unwind. If it has been a hard day, use the last hour of it for quiet bedtime preparation. Empty your mind, take a warm bath, read, relax ... then go to sleep.

And see to it that your bed is comfortable; that the mattress is wide enough, long enough, free of lumps and bumps, and that the linens are fresh and tightly drawn.

Dozens of sleep-aids are on the market from snoozing pills to special pillows, from bald-head warmers to electric socks. None of them can take the place of a relaxed mind and comfortable bedding, in the big town or in the country.

Teen-Age Mail

Girl, 16, Doesn't Like Her New Personality

By DOROTHY RICKER

Dear Mrs. Ricker:
I have a problem that means a lot to me and I know others who feel about as I do. My problem is that I don't like myself. All my life I have been called sweet, shy, quiet and simple. Now, at 16, I have changed completely. I'm noisy, always laughing, like to tease others and I have picked up the bad habit of false flattery which I am really trying to change. Mother tells me quite often to stop showing off and to be myself although generally I get along very well with older people. I would like to know if I should keep reminding myself to be quiet, or should I just do whatever I feel like doing at the moment?

Could you please tell me also which of the two types other people, either teen-agers or adults, like best. I value your advice highly and I want to thank you for your time and consideration.

All sensitive, intelligent people feel critical of themselves at times. It is a natural condition which comes and goes, sometimes even without apparent cause. While too much self-criticism is unwise, occasionally it is well for all of us to "take stock" of our faults and do what we can to correct them.

There is an important point to remember, Carol. We can choose our own behavior and, to some extent, we can control the development of our personalities.

So, you see, solving your problem is really something only you can do. My advice is first to decide what type of person you want to be—a show-off and a loud-mouth or a warm, lively, cultured person who can make the right kind of friends and keep them. Then decide which of your habits or traits you dislike and try to improve them. When you feel the urge to be brash or loud—don't do it. Always try to be your BETTER self—it's just as simple as that!

Dear Mrs. Ricker:

I went to a dance and a boy I knew was there. He asked me to dance with him and I did. But, the next time, I saw him at a dance he asked all the other girls, including my girl friend, before he finally asked me to dance. I suppose he wanted to make me jealous or something. Does this prove he likes me, or what does it prove?

It appears to me that this boy likes to dance with a variety of girls, including you, so why do you think dancing with you should prove anything in particular? I believe you are making the mistake of trying to make something special out of a very casual situation.

This column is conducted for teen-agers and their parents. Letters can be answered through the column only—as soon as time and space permit.

Dear Mrs. Ricker:
I am 15 years old and a freshman in high school. I am going with a 16-year-old boy who goes to the same church I do. We have been sitting together in church for a quite a while.

Last week I happened to mention this fact to my parents and they almost had a fit. I hadn't thought to mention it before because I didn't see anything wrong with it.

They say girls and boys do not sit together in church until they are engaged. They also say I am too young to sit with my boy friend. Am I too young, Mrs. Ricker, or does a couple have to be engaged before they can sit together in church?

Obviously your parents have not been attending your church. If they had, they would have known that you and your boy friend were sitting together, and perhaps learned that it is a common custom.

Many teen-agers (about your age) sit together in our church and I can see absolutely no reason why you shouldn't do the same providing your boy friend is a decent, respectable boy. Of course, if he isn't you should not be going with him anyway.

It is ridiculous to say a couple should be engaged before they can sit together in a church. Perhaps that is the rule in your particular church, but I have never heard of such a thing!

Installs New Fully Automatic Molding Plant

Greyshaw of Georgia, Inc., recognized as one of the South's leading manufacturers and distributors of plastic items, has recently expanded its facilities in new, larger quarters at 2740 Apple Valley Rd., NE, Brookhaven.

The modern, up-to-date manufacturing plant consists of approximately 62,000 square feet of space.

Simultaneously, firm officials also announce the installation of the first completely automatic injection molding plant in the Southeast. They will produce plastic containers for the food processing industry, as well as for other industries which require containers in the sale and disposal of their products.

"The manufacture of plastic packaging items is rapidly developing into a major industry, due to the continual reduction in the price of raw materials," says Ely Freedman, official of the company. "And... as a result of new and improved manufacturing techniques, plastic containers are being made competitive with paper containers."

"This is especially important to anyone engaged in merchandising and selling. Surveys show that plastic gives many items far greater visual sales appeal than Greyshaw of Georgia is equipped to manufacture any plastic container for your products. They have stock molds and manufacture containers in one-half, eight, 12 and 16-ounce sizes, as well as one-half gallon containers for use in dairy, bakery and food industries.

Mr. Freedman points out that Greyshaw of Georgia is continually experimenting and conducting research in its search for new uses of plastic. In conjunction with a firm of engineers and a producer of similar products, Greyshaw has developed a process for the manufacture of a light plastic "dual use" cup to be competitive with paper cups. This cup can be used for either hot or cold drinks, since it passes neither heat nor cold through its walls.

In addition to the manufacture and sale of plastic containers, Greyshaw of Georgia manufactures and distributes a variety of plastic toys. They also manufacture and sell several plastic household items.

The company sells its food containers through a national organization closely related to the packaging field. It sells its disposable medical containers through a co-operative group of dealers operating nationally. Its toys and housewares are sold through their own salesmen and selling agents throughout the United States, Canada and some Latin American countries.

Greyshaw of Georgia maintains a showroom for its toy products at 200 Fifth Ave., New York City.

Georgia Medics Warn Against Still-Air Heat Stroke Danger

In a series of articles prepared by the Medical Assn. of Georgia, there is one heat stroke which contains this important fact: Heat strokes are caused by prolonged exposure to excessive indoor heat... when the humidity is unusually high or low and the air is still.

Let us repeat that phrase: "When the air is still," which is a point too often overlooked in the arrangements for the comfort of customers and employees, or for those in the home itself. There may be cooling devices, but in many cases the need for moving air, at the rate of 2 miles per hour, is not taken care of. And it can be handled economically and in a very practical way in any working or living area.

The Coolair people, who make the fine "breeze-conditioning" fans, supply units that range in size from those which breeze-condition laundries, garages, auditoriums, etc., on down to window fans for the home or office. Because the Coolair folks are very large producers, they have been able to engineer their product that a Coolair fan for a certain air-moving need is less costly than competitive fans for the same need.

This is why leading architects and engineers specify Coolair fans of the correct capacity, and why you will find a display of Coolair fans among the many interesting exhibits at the Architects and Engineers Institute Show, 230 Spring St., in Atlanta. Coolair fans are for sale only at

Sylvania Presents Full Line of Striking 1959 'Sylouettes'

Dollar-An-Hour Avis Rates Save Big Rent-a-Car Money

Belle Isle-Avis have recognized, with a special rate, those many people who need to rent an automobile for a short time. For instance, while the family car is in the shop, when two members of the family must drive in separate directions, for the many times when part of a day's use of a car is the need.

The rate for this service, on a 1958 Ford or other fine car, is only a dollar an hour, plus 8c a mile traveled. And this includes everything—gas, oil, public liability and property damage insurance. No extras; no hidden charges.

But if you keep the car more than 6 hours, the rate is even better because there's a special rate of only $6 for up to 12 hours, plus 8c per mile. And, of course, there are low, low Belle Isle-Avis rates for service by the day, week, month or year. There is even a one-way rate. You take the car on the road; if you have to complete the trip by air or rail you can check in the rental car with the Avis station at that point.

Belle Isle-Avis wants you to understand that they are eager to give you full information about the rental of cars and trucks of all kinds, without any obligation. At all three Belle Isle-Avis stations in Atlanta there are friendly people, glad to help whether you are in immediate need of a car or truck, or a fleet of them, or merely checking up on rates.

Belle Isle-Avis hopes sincerely you will compare their rates with any others in Atlanta. And if you are planning a trip to other cities, or even abroad, the Belle Isle-Avis offices here are glad to quote you rates and make reservations for a new car to meet your plane, train or ship anywhere in the world through the thousands of Avis stations everywhere.

The Belle Isle-Avis offices: Downtown, Cars, 20 Houston, JA. 2-3328; Downtown, Trucks, 199 Houston, JA. 2-9282; Airport, both cars and trucks, P.O. 7-2416. Call any of these for anything you want to know about rates here or anywhere.

The Belle Isle organization, which is Avis in Atlanta, is proud of its willing services to the Atlanta public since 1884. You can expect the same eagerness to help you now that has prevailed all these 74 years.

Electric Sales Shows New Line At Open House

The handsome television receiver officially chosen for showing in the American Pavilion at the Brussels World's Fair is now available in a full line to suit every taste and purse.

Sylvania's Sylouette, "the nation's slimmest and newest console" was recently previewed by dealers at Electric Sales & Service Co. showrooms in Atlanta. This week, a similar open house will be held in Savannah on Aug. 20 and 21 and next week in Albany on Aug. 27.

Consumers will be able to see the Sylouette displayed at Sylvania dealers later this month.

"It is easy to see why the Sylvania Sylouette is America's most wanted television set," says Arthur I. Butts Jr., president of Electric Sales & Service Co., Sylvania's Georgia distributor.

"The years-ahead styling of this beautifully designed television assures the owner of the biggest dollar value available today. He gets both the performance superiority found in any Sylvania TV set plus the exclusive 'floating picture" concept of the Sylouette." Mr. Butts pointed out that Sylouette models are available in styles to coordinate with period, early American and contemporary furnishings.

Dealers also saw Sylvania's 1959 lineup of "110 Slimline" models with new custom-designed cabinets in console and table models. Sylvania pioneered the 110-degree picture tube which makes these slim, trim television sets possible.

"Sylvania's exclusive HaloLight, the soft surround light that makes viewing easy on the eyes, is available on both the Slimline and the Sylouette models," commented Albert R. Arnau, vice president of Electric Sales & Service Co. "This year we are emphasizing that the buyer gets more visible value in a Sylvania TV set—a fact well demonstrated in the excellent cabinet design and the splendid performance on the TV picture screen."

A third line of television sets—exclusive Sylvania Convertible TV—completes the outlay of Sylvania models. The unique Sylvania Convertible offers both a lightweight, big-screen portable and a companion console, a luxurious living room TV ensemble.

Another newsmaker at the Atlanta open-house showing by Electric Sales & Service Co. was a complete lineup of stereo-high fidelity phonographs—everything from portable manual phonographs to complete stereophonic instruments.

Sylvania Smart Set radios, which were also shown, an all-new approach in home radio design. These radios are engineered for listening, keyed to quality with an eye for price—everything from smart table models to all-transistor portables with rugged, non-breakable cabinets.

Get in the market for a new television set, stereo-high fidelity phonograph, or radio, and you'll find the best thing in sight wears the name Sylvania. All these fine new products will be on display at your Sylvania dealer's showroom soon. You'll do yourself a big favor if you plan now to visit him. For the name of the Sylvania dealer nearest you, phone or write Electric Sales & Service Co., 209 Walton St., N.W., Atlanta, Ga., Jackson 4-5891.

NEW GORDY DEALER

Mack Wynn Tire Co. Offers Dayton Thorobreds

What happens when an experienced engineer turns his attention to providing motorists with the maximum safe mileage from a set of tires?

The answer can now be found at Mack Wynn Tire Co., 2151 Piedmont Road, NE, at the Expressway. This new tire company, offering Dayton, Fisk and Gillette tires in all sizes, was opened July 15 by G. Mack Wynn. Mr. Wynn, who holds a degree in both mechanical and electrical engineering and who has had extensive experience in both, feels that his operation will be unique in the services it offers.

"There is as much difference in tires as there is in any other manufactured product," he says, "and we are keying our new operation to offering the maximum in safety and long mileage. We invite our customers to come in any time and look over our modern shop and talk to us about their tires or any type of tire service."

Mack Wynn Tire Co. is a modern, streamlined operation that impresses the visitor with its cleanliness and friendly atmosphere. Specializing in Dayton Thorobred Tires, it also offers other lines distributed by Gordy Tire Co. such as Fisk, Gillette and Michelin. As Mr. Wynn pointed out, there is a tire for every purpose and in every price range.

In addition to new tires, the new company offers high-quality engineered retreading, using the very latest electric equipment, precision methods, and the best materials. Every retread is guaranteed against defects in materials and workmanship for the life of the tire.

"We also have the latest equipment for wheel balancing and other tire services," Mr. Wynn said, "and we make it our business to see that our tires deliver the mileage you expect."

Mack Wynn Tire Co. is located at 2151 Piedmont Road, NE, just north of the Expressway. The telephone number is TR. 6-0968.

MACK WYNN TIRE COMPANY NOW OPEN—

Neutralizing Talmadge Is Bodenhamer's Aim

By WILLIAM M. BATES
Constitution Political Writer

As Georgia's gubernatorial campaign moves into the stretch, two lines of strategy seem to be emerging from William T. Bodenhamer's effort to overtake front-running Lt. Gov. Ernest Vandiver.

Both are seen in his speeches of the past 10 days:

1. Bodenhamer is attempting to neutralize the influence of the governor's race of Sen. Herman Talmadge, who personally is reported to favor Vandiver.

2. Bodenhamer more and more appears to be identifying himself with Gov. Griffin's administration.

The attempt to neutralize the powerful influence of Talmadge takes the form of repeated high praise of the junior senator by Bodenhamer on the stump. Referring to Talmadge as "my friend," Bodenhamer says the Vandiver forces are trying to ride the Talmadge "coattails." Bodenhamer points out that Talmadge has declared that he is not supporting any candidate for governor this year.

It is true, as Bodenhamer says, that Talmadge has declared hands-off all races—not just that for governor. But the Vandiver camp has done a good job of selling the idea that Talmadge is in their corner.

It is doubtful that Bodenhamer can "unsell" the idea before the Sept. 10 primary. Vandiver supporters have been quick to recall that Bodenhamer has opposed Talmadge in the past.

IN GRIFFIN'S BOSOM

Ever since his opening campaign speech, Bodenhamer has moved closer and closer to the bosom of the Griffin administration. He has praised Griffin's Rural Roads Authority and promised to continue it until "every school bus route and every mail route in every militia district, in every county in our state has been paved," he has promised to keep up the Griffin record of giving school teachers an annual pay raise during his administration; he has followed Griffin's lead in promising support for the port of Savannah; and he has carefully refrained from saying anything that might be construed as criticism of the Griffin administration regarding charges of irregularities in government.

Last Saturday, at Statesboro, he went a step further and included words of personal praise for Griffin, calling him "one of the greatest segregation leaders in our nation."

Bodenhamer, by linking himself so closely with the Griffin administration, may be fishing for the governor's open support in the closing weeks of the campaign.

No one in touch with the atmosphere around the Capitol can doubt that Griffin's private sympathies lie with Bodenhamer; the governor has clashed too often and too sharply with Vandiver to expect him to mark his ballot for the lieutenant governor. But Griffin has avoided any public utterance that would cast him in the role of an active Bodenhamer supporter.

VISIBLE SUPPORT

So far, the only material and visible administration support for Bodenhamer has come from a handful of administration lieutenants. For a time, Revenue Commissioner T. V. Williams Sr. and his son, T. V. Jr., were the only administration officials openly participating in the Bodenhamer campaign. In recent days, however, Highway Chairman Roy Chalker has moved toward active support of Bodenhamer; and R. A. (Cheney) Griffin, the governor's brother and aide who is running for the House, has indicated he will seek the speakership if Bodenhamer should win.

But Griffin himself seems to be sticking by his word to keep out of the race. Some Vandiver supporters have long suspected, however, that Griffin would quietly move to aid Bodenhamer during the closing stages of the campaign—particularly if the Ty Ty minister-politician appeared to be making any real headway against Vandiver.

If Griffin does intend to boost Bodenhamer's candidacy, he will probably do so within the next week or so. Activity around the governor's office will be watched closely by the Vandiver camp in the days immediately ahead.

MEANING FOR 1960

Any last-minute political power moves could have meaning for the 1960 senatorial race, when Sen. Richard B. Russell runs for reelection.

It is noted that Bodenhamer, while praising Talmadge and Griffin, has never referred to Russell, who like Talmadge, is considered sympathetic to Vandiver.

If Bodenhamer should pull a political upset and defeat Vandiver, chances are that Russell would face strong opposition in 1960—possibly from Griffin.

But if Vandiver is elected, the chances of substantial Russell opposition in 1960 will be greatly reduced.

27th Water, Sewage School Set

About 400 water and sewage plant operators will attend the 27th annual Georgia Water and Sewage School Sept. 10 at Georgia Tech, officials said Sunday.

All water and sewage operators and supervisory officials, consultant engineers and public health workers are invited to attend the two-day school, according to M. B. Nixon of Atlanta, president of the Georgia Water and Sewage Assn.

"The school is planned to meet actual problems and situations continually arising in Georgia's municipalities and industries," said William H. Weir, director of the Water Quality Division of the Georgia Department of Public Health. All classes except field trips will be held at Georgia Tech.

Rutgers Chief Picked To Lead Christian, Jewish Body

Dr. Lewis Webster Jones, president of Rutgers University, has been elected president of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, it was announced Sunday by Miss Marjorie McLachlan, Georgia director of the organization.

Dr. Jones succeeds Dr. vEerett R. Clinchy, who occupied the post since 1928. Dr. Clinchy will devote full time as administrative president of the World Brotherhood organization. Dr. Jones will be installed early in the fall. He has served as president of Rutgers since 1951. Previously, he was president of Arkansas University from 1947-1951, and president of Bennington College from 1941-1947.
